Car Care Courses

Q. Where can I take an auto mechanics course in the evenings? Also, what would be the cost of such a course? G.W., Long Beach.

A. Long Beach City College will offer three evening classes in automobile mechanics this fall at its Business and Technology Campus, 1305 E. Pacific Coast Highway. The summer courses are taught only during the daytime. The essentials of auto care is a nine-week course designed for the layman, while the motor tune-up and automatic transmission courses are open only to students who have had some experience in the automotive field or who have taken a basic auto mechanics course. To enroll in any of these classes, you must make an appointment to register in room 119 on the Business and Technology Campus between Aug. 18 and Sept. 12. There is a $1 student body fee for one class.

Future Jetport

Q. I own some property in Palmdale that I think will be condemned for the new airport to be built there. Can you tell me when and how this will be done? J.L.K., Paramount.

A. Mrs. Virginia Black, public relations officer for the Los Angeles City Department of Airports, said city appraisers will assess land values beginning this summer, but the entire land acquisition is expected to take more than two years. Once appraisals are made, the department will offer to buy the property at the appraised valuation and negotiate with property owners if necessary. "Land is not obtained by condemnation unless disagreement with an owner is unresolvable," she said. The 17,000-acre Palmdale airport, located on the northeast edge of the city, is scheduled to be in operation in the late 1970's. Built to accommodate all types of aircraft, the airport will handle supersonic jet airliners that are too large or noisy to land at Los Angeles International Airport.

Shoe-In

Q. I had polio as a child which left me with a back problem. I need special orthopedic shoes called Foot-So-Port, but I can't find a store that sells them. J.A.L., Los Alamitos.

A. ACTION LINE found three stores in this area which carry Foot-So-Port shoes: Dutch Village Bootery, 5918 E. South St., Lakewood; Trani Shoes, 135 E. Fourth St., Long Beach; and Spring's Tryle Walk Shoe Store, 115 W. Fifth St., Santa Ana.

Sticky Question

Q. I have purchased the "Diet Watchers Guide," and many of the dessert recipes call for No Cal syrup in various flavors. I have been unable to find the syrup in local markets. Can you help me? A.P., Long Beach.

A. No Cal Corp. does not have a California distributor for its products, so local stores do not carry the syrups. You can order the syrups, but only in large quantities, directly from No Cal Corp., 921 Flushing Ave., Brooklyn, N.Y. 11206. You must buy a minimum of five cases of the syrup. Each case contains 12 8-ounce bottles of one syrup flavor. The cost, including freight charges, is $7.20 per case. No Cal comes in black cherry, lemon, cola, grape, raspberry, strawberry and calypso flavors. A company spokesman told ACTION LINE the syrups contain no calories, and sucaryl is the sweetening agent. If you don't want to order from No Cal, you will find low calorie fruit syrups at Fern's Nutrition Center, 638 E. Fourth St., and Schulman's Nutrition Center, 655 Pine Ave.

Rare Breed

Q. Last year I bought what I thought was an Akita puppy, only to find out that it is a shiba. Apparently this breed is rare in this area, for I haven't been able to find a breeder of shibas. Can you help me? E.R., Long Beach.

A. The shiba, sometimes called the shiba-in of Nippon-In, is not often found in the United States, according to Eleanor Price, west coast editor for Dog World magazine. The shiba is a smaller breed of Akita, and you can locate a breeder through the Akita Club of America's Branch Office President Albert Harrell, 7161 Kermore Lane, Stanton, Calif. 90680. Mrs. Price said she would like to see your dog, and would be glad to give you any more help you need. You can call her at 425-3369.

Three other stores which have designer fabric sections are Florence's Fabrics, 2813 Pacific Coast Highway, Torrance; Sally's Fabrics, 8480 W. Third St., Los Angeles; and F&S Fabrics, 10629 W. Pico Blvd., West Los Angeles.

Arrest warrants were issued Friday for two men in the slaying of Santa Ana's 1968 police rookie of the year, and the suspects sought were identified by Orange County district attorney Cecil Hicks as members of the Black Panther Party.

In addition, Black Panther spokesman in Los Angeles confirmed that Daniel Michael Lynem, 22, booked Thursday on suspicion of murdering officer Nelson A. Sasser, is a member of the organization.

Santa Ana Municipal Court Judge Eugene Langhauser issued the arrest warrants for Nathaniel G. Grimes, 21, of 2018 W. Eighth St., and Arthur DeWitt League, 20, of 1633 W. Highland Ave., both Santa Ana.

THEY ARE sought on charges of murder and conspiracy to commit murder in the slaying of Sasser, who was shot early Thursday after curbing his patrol car to question a group of pedestrians walking in the 200 block of North Raitt Street.

Dist. Atty. Hicks also filed formal charges of murder and conspiracy to commit murder against Lynem, who is expected to be arraigned in Santa Ana Municipal Court Monday.

USS Evans Skipper, Exec Asleep When Tragedy Struck

The skipper and executive officer of the USS Frank E. Evans said Friday they were both asleep in their cabins when the American destroyer was slashed in two by the Australian aircraft carrier HMAS Melbourne in the South China Sea.

ley, whose ship lost 74 of its 263-man crew in the predawn Tuesday tragedy, said they did not know what happened or what miscalculation caused the collision.

They disclosed at a news conference on the big U.S. Naval Base at Subic Bay, the Philippines, that the duty officer on the Evans at time of the accident was a junior grade lieutenant, Ronald Ramsey of Long Beach, who declined to talk with newsmen.

THE destroyer's helmsman and key communications personnel on duty did not survive the collision.

The Evans, homeported in Long Beach, was the first command for McLemore, who declined along with McMichael, the ship's second ranking officer—to speculate as to what caused the collision.

Detailed discussion on that question is expected when a joint U.S.-Australian naval investigation board opens its probe Monday at the Subic Bay base.

Senior member of the two-nation board is Rear Adm. Jerome H. King Jr. of Long Beach, commander of Antisubmarine Warfare Group 1, who was aboard the American carrier USS Kearsarge when the Melbourne sliced through the Evans.

The Kearsarge, which transported most of the destroyer survivors to Subic Bay, was among 40 vessels of five nations taking part in a Southeast Asia Treaty Organization training exercise coded Operation Sea Spirit. The maneuvers were canceled immediately after the accident.

"I WAS asleep in my sea cabin near the bridge ... my first recollection was a tremendous noise and fire ... I thought we had been torpedoed or mined ... I bent back the jagged metal with my hands to force my way out ... I found myself in the water with the wreckage ... I don't know how I survived," the skipper of the Evans told newsmen as the Kearsarge reached Subic Bay.

He revealed that shortly before the SEATO exercise which led to the disastrous collision, he had dined with the skipper of the Melbourne while it

2 Others Found Guilty on Reduced Charges

FT. ORD (AP) — An Army court-martial Friday convicted 12 privates of mutiny and two on lesser charges resulting from a singing sit-down protest by 27 enlisted men in the San Francisco Presidio.

The five-man panel which convicted the 14 after 26 days of testimony and six hours of deliberation reconvened for a penalty hearing to decide sentences.

ALL 27 were charged with mutiny after the protest at the Presidio stockade last Oct. 14.

Eight were convicted of mutiny in earlier trials. Three men are fugitives and two have been hospitalized for observation.

Of the 14 tried at Ft. Ord, one was convicted of willful disobedience and another of failure to obey a lawful order.

The mutiny conviction carries a maximum possible penalty of life imprisonment. The willful disobedience maximum is five years and failure to obey is six months.

THE FIRST three of eight privates previously convicted are serving two-year terms. Originally they were sentenced to terms of 14, 15 and 16 years.

The Army judge advocate general reduced the terms after complaints in the U.S. Senate against the penalties.

Pvt. Larry Sales, 22, of Modesto, was convicted Friday of failure to obey a lawful order.

Pvt. Danny Seals, 22 of Orangevale, Calif., was found guilty of willful disobedience.

THE 12 convicted of mutiny were:

Sight 'Life Raft' in Bering Sea

JUNEAU, Alaska (UPI) — An "orange target," believed to be a life raft from a missing RC-135 reconnaissance plane has been sighted in the Bering Sea about 220 miles north of Amchitka Island, the Coast Guard reported Friday.

A spokesman at the Coast Guard air search and rescue headquarters here said the object was spotted near where the four engine military version of the Boeing 707 carrying 19 servicemen disappeared Thursday.

THE COAST GUARD said the object appeared to be an orange life raft carrying one person. A spokesman said the sighting was not confirmed as a life raft because it was made by a jet that was flying too fast to make positive identification.

10 Indicted in Biltmore Fire

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Ten Mexican-American militants were indicted Friday on charges of setting a series of fires at the 2,500-room Biltmore Hotel. The blazes might have mushroomed into a major disaster, killing hundreds, had it not been for an advance tip from a police undercover agent, authorities said.

The fires were designed to disrupt a speech by Gov. Ronald Reagan to a group of Mexican-American educators at the hotel last April 24, according to the indictments returned by the county grand jury.

None of the estimated 3,000 persons in the hotel at the time was injured, but the district attorney's office said the blazes might have become a major conflagration had not firemen, tipped to the plot by the undercover officer, been stationed at the hotel. The fires caused $100,000 damage to the downtown landmark, one of the largest hotels in the west.

Investigators said the fires were set in stairwells and other areas where they would have spread quickly and sealed off escape from the upper floors if they had not been extinguished swiftly.

The situation was particularly dangerous because most of the hotel's elevators were knocked out when the electrical power was turned off, allegedly by some of the defendants.

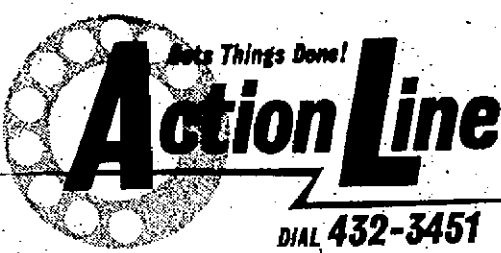

Firemen were stationed at the hotel after Fernando Sumaya, 23, a rookie police officer who infiltrated the brown berets, a militant group of young Mexican-Americans, reported the plot.

Sumaya was a key witness before the grand jury.

Sumaya grew a beard and posed as a militant after graduating last year from the police academy in order to infiltrate the Brown Berets. He was withdrawn from the assignment two weeks ago after he was exposed as a police officer by beret members who had learned their ranks had been infiltrated.

Four of the 10 indicted were accused of planning the fires. They were charged with conspiracy, arson, burglary, burning personal property and malicious destruction of electrical lines, all felonies. Six others were charged with conspiracy, burglary and malicious destruction of electrical lines.

New Viet Terror in Da Nang

SAIGON, Saturday (AP) — The enemy slammed at least 45 rockets and mortars into the Da Nang area overnight and terrorists sped through streets hurling explosives. A second day of savage attacks began northwest of Saigon in a surge apparently designed to influence Sunday's summit conference on Midway.

First reports today said five persons were killed and 37 wounded in the barrage of missiles against Da Nang and military posts around the northern port city.

IN GROUND fighting, the enemy was taking heavy losses. Incomplete counts put enemy dead countrywide at nearly 650 since the war's pace stepped up late Thursday, the largest number falling northwest of Saigon near Cambodia. Countrywide U.S. losses were about 50 killed, 150 wounded.

The battle pace quickened elsewhere in the country. An enemy force ambushed U.S. Marines camped for the night in northern Quang Tri Province and killed 10 leathernecks and wounded 24 others. Five of the attackers were killed.

Enemy antiaircraft gunners in the demilitarized zone hit a U.S. scout plane, killing an observer aboard, but the pilot managed to keep the craft aloft and made it back to base.

U.S. 1st Infantry troops came across a company of enemy soldiers in bunkers about 75 miles north of Saigon. Pouring in heavy artillery and air strikes, the Americans killed 115 of the enemy, officers said. U.S. losses were put at three killed and 13 wounded.

THE U.S. Command declined to characterize the intensified enemy action as the start of a new full-scale offensive. But one field officer said: "They started their summer offensive Thursday."

The field officer referred to more than 100 shelling overnight Thursday-Friday and attacks on Allied positions near Cambodia that marked the sharpest enemy initiatives in almost a month.

Four of the dead at Da Nang were said to be U.S. airmen at the Da Nang airbase, which took eight 122mm rockets in two barrages. Aircraft were still able to use the field.

PEOPLE IN THE NEWS

Robert Taylor 'to Die Soon'

Combined News Services

Death is "inevitable in the immediate future" for film star Robert Taylor, according to a spokesman where the actor was under treatment for lung cancer. The 57-year-old actor's condition is "rapidly deteriorating," the spokesman for St. Johns Hospital said, and the immediate future could mean "a week, maybe more, maybe less."

He said Taylor knew he was suffering from terminal cancer and that he was about to die. The actor was "resting as comfortably as can be expected and is not in too much pain," he added. Taylor's stepson, Michael Thiess, 23, was found dead May 26 in a west Los Angeles motel. He was the son of actress Ursula Thiess, the German-born actress to whom Taylor has been married the past 15 years.

Taylor, star of "The Detectives" television series and of more than 70 movies including "Camille" with Greta Garbo, has been in St. Johns seven times since last September. In October part of his right lung was removed. It was confirmed last December by his wife that he was suffering from cancer. Taylor was previously married to actress Barbara Stanwyck.

THREAT TO POPE

Police privately expressed concern Friday that demonstrations may mar the visit next Tuesday of Pope Paul VI to Geneva. "The Rome of Protestantism," they tended to dismiss as a prank, however, a threatening letter received from Northern Ireland saying plastic bombs and tear gas will "make the Pope regret his visit." The Rev. Ian Paisley, extremist Protestant leader in Northern Ireland, quickly dissociated himself from the letter.

HERO DIES

Gen. Sir Miles Dempsey, who took the 2nd British Army into the Normandy beaches exactly 25 years ago, died Friday. He was 72. At his Berkshire home, relatives and friends said he had been thinking of the anniversary for some days. It had apparently weighed on him.

Sir Miles was on the staff of Field Marshal Sir Bernard Law Montgomery. After the European invasion and the Allied advance, he commanded British forces in Southeast Asia.

NEW OFFICE

George Hildebrand, a Cornell University professor who less than a month ago was named deputy undersecretary of labor for international affairs, won't get a chance to see his new office before he has to go to work. Hildebrand will be sworn in Sunday evening at Dulles International Airport. He will take off immediately for Geneva to attend the annual meeting of the International Labor Organization.

WESTMORLAND

Army Chief of Staff Gen. William C. Westmoreland said Friday he would like to see the South Vietnamese assume a greater role in the Vietnam war "if they can do it without damaging" allied efforts. The former U.S. commander in Vietnam spoke of the war at a news conference preceding an address during an ROTC commissioning ceremony at Ohio State University in Columbus.

'FROZEN'

STOWAWAY IMPROVING

Armando Socarras Ramirez, the young Cuban "frozen" when he stowed away three days ago in the wheel-bay of a Havana to Madrid jetliner, took his first solid food Friday since he was brought to a hospital. Dr. Alejandro Martinez Dalmu, a specialist at Madrid's Gran Hospital de la Beneficencia, said Socarras' condition was improving but close medical examination was continuing. "It is a unique case," Dalmu said. "We cannot find a similar case in world medical literature." When Socarras, 22, arrived in Madrid, covered with ice and frozen stiff, his temperature was down to 93.2 degrees—more than five degrees below normal. Earlier the chief medical officer of Iberia Airlines described him as "a superman" for surviving the ordeal. Dalmu said the explanation probably was that Socarras froze before the Iberia plane reached a high altitude. "This would explain how Socarras survived the lack of oxygen in the wheel-bay," he said.

Princess Margrethe, heir to the Danish throne, entered a hospital Friday night to give birth to her second child. Her first child, Prince Frederik, was a year old last week.

KLAT STAMP

Little Polly Ann Klat knew no letter was complete without a postage stamp on the envelope, so she drew a tiny face and mailed her letter to "Grandma Klat, New Britain, Conn." The post office, duly wrote New Britain's zip code on the envelope, hand-stamped the letter, and delivered it—apparently not noticing 6-year-old Polly's drawing was bogus. Grandma Klat enclosed the letter in a reply to Polly's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Klat of Palmdale. "Imagine," she said, "it wasn't even marked postage due."

PRODUCER DIES

Vinton Freedley, 77, who produced such Broadway musical comedy hits as "Anything Goes," "Girl Crazy," and "Red, Hot and Blue" during the 1920's and '30's, and who was long a leading figure in the American theater, died in a New York hospital Friday. He helped discover such stars as Fred Astaire, Danny Kaye, Mary Martin and Ethel Merman.

Mexicana Airline Crash Victims Looted

Combined Wire Services

MONTERREY — Mexican troops and security agents arrested 20 persons Friday for looting the bodies of 79 persons killed Wednesday when a Mexicana Airlines 727 jet crashed against the sheer face of Three-Peak Hill. Ralph Saucedo of the U.S. consulate said 12 suspected looters were arrested. A radio message from the crash scene said an additional person—a member of a recovery team—has been arrested for stuffing a 100-peso note into his pocket. Security agents in Mexico City reported that 20 persons had been arrested for looting and had been charged by Monterrey Dist. Atty. Hector Figueroa Ramos. The accused looters were peasants who, in some cases, had acted as guides for rescue brigades, and stole rings, watches, cash and other valuables. Recovery teams, hampered by rain and fog, reached the crash scene Friday but made only the barest start at recovering bodies before the weather made them stop for the day.

Sino-Soviet Border Row Flares at Meet

MOSCOW — The Sino-Soviet feud flared into the open for the first time at the world Communist Conference Friday and precipitated a dispute among some of the 75 party leaders attending. Several speakers denounced the Mao Tse-tung regime in speeches before the congress. The attacks coincided with charges by Peking that the Soviet Union was continuing armed incursions and other provocations along their border in the Far East. Communist China and its allies have boycotted the world congress that got under way in Moscow Thursday.

Polls Put Pompidou Ahead of Poher

Reds Claim U.S. Bombs Killed 39

TOKYO — Radio Hanoi charged Friday that U.S. planes bombed and strafed North Vietnamese populated areas as far as 190 miles north of the demilitarized zone in May, killing or wounding 39 persons in one raid. The broadcast said U.S. planes "continued bombing and strafing missions against populated areas from Vinh Lonh to Nghe An." The U.S. Command does not comment on such charges, but American planes bombing Laos on North Vietnam's western border may occasionally stray into North Vietnam.

Swedish Red Cross Plane Shot Down

LAGOS — Soviet-built MIG jets of the Nigerian air force shot down a Swedish Red Cross plane flying supplies to Biafra and its four-man crew was captured after parachuting safely, according to reports reaching Lagos Friday. Informants in Biafra and in Sweden identified the plane as a DC-7 flown by an American pilot, David Brown, who now lives in Stockholm. They said it went down while en route with 10 tons of supplies to Biafra's Uli-Ihiala airstrip. Radio Nigeria identified the aircraft as a DC-6 and said it was "apparently making a surprise bombing raid."

Bus Plunge Near Manila Fatal to 40

MANILA — A bus plunged into an 800-foot-deep ravine and burst into flames in the Philippines' Quezon Province Thursday, killing at least 40 persons and injuring 31 others critically, police reported Friday. It was feared the death toll would rise in the disaster which occurred near Baler, about 100 miles south of Manila. Most of the bodies recovered from the wreckage were so badly mangled or charred that authorities ordered the immediate burial of the unclaimed victims. The bus developed faulty brakes as it was negotiating sharp descending curves on a narrow mountain road, police said.

Haitian Bomber Reported Captured

PORT AU PRINCE — Haitian President Francois Duvalier said Friday the four-engine transport plane which bombed the capital Wednesday causing five deaths, has been captured in the Bahamas. The reportedly ailing president, in a 12-minute radio broadcast to the nation, said the C-121, "Connie," had been seized on South Caicos Island, in the eastern Bahamas, and that British authorities were investigating.

Draft Boards Hit by U.S. Court Ruling

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Court of Appeals ruled Friday that draft boards have no right to reclassify registrants because of antiwar or antidraft activities, as draft Director Lewis R. Hershey had suggested they do. In a now-famous letter to local boards Oct. 26, 1967, Hershey reasoned that deferments are issued in the national interest, and anyone trying to hamper the draft or public policy could not be acting in the public interest. Although Hershey stopped short of actually telling draft boards to deny deferments to antigovernment demonstrators, the Court of Appeals called his letter a "declaration of war against antiwar protesters." The reasoning, it added, sprang "full-grown from the head of Gen. Hershey without benefit of reference of any provision" of the Selective Service Act.

Astronaut in Test Hop to Moon

CAPE KENNEDY — Apollo 11 astronaut Michael Collins "flew" his spaceship on a simulated launch to the moon Friday while his two colleagues practiced lunar landings in a nearby trainer. Operating controls as though the spacecraft were actually flying, Collins and backup pilot Ronald E. Evans went through the final hours of a mock countdown and then simulated launch and the initial stages of the lunar flight. Neil A. Armstrong and Edwin E. Aldrin, the two Apollo 11 pilots scheduled to land on the moon July 20, skipped the simulated launch.

Poll Shows Lunar Probe Unpopular

NEW YORK — More than 90 per cent of adult Americans read about the Apollo 10 moon flight, but only slightly more than half of those approve of the lunar exploration program, a nationwide survey indicated Friday. Sindlinger & Company, an opinion research organization, said that on the basis of a sample of more than 1,400 U.S. adults interviewed by telephone after the May 26 splashdown of Apollo 10, nearly 40 per cent totally disapproved of the exploration program.

Claim No Proof Marijuana is Addictive

WASHINGTON — Dr. Philip Handler, chairman of the National Science Board, says there is no scientific proof that smoking marijuana is addictive or leads to the taking of harder drugs. "The evidence that marijuana is addictive is not conclusive at all—quite the opposite as far as I can make out," Handler told a House appropriations subcommittee in testimony released Friday. "It is our puritan ethics which say we shouldn't do this rather than science which says we should not, at the moment," Handler said.

State of Emergency in Hartford Ordered

HARTFORD — A state of emergency was declared Friday by Mayor Ann Uccello after four nights of looting and shooting in the city's predominantly Negro north end. City Manager Elisha Freedman imposed an 8 p.m. to 5 a.m. curfew until the city returns to normal. State Police Commissioner Leo J. Mulcahy ordered 100 state troopers to report to the Hartford barracks in the event of further disturbances. More than 130 persons have been arrested and two persons shot. Scores of businesses have reported looting and damages.

German Measles Vaccine Due Next Week

WASHINGTON — The nation's first vaccine against German measles, which endangers the unborn children of pregnant women, is expected to be licensed early next week. Standards governing production of the vaccine were published Friday to formally establish levels of safety, purity and potency. German measles, or rubella, is a serious threat to pregnant women, and may kill or maim their unborn children. A 1963-65 epidemic left an estimated 20,000 to 30,000 children with handicaps.

Storms, Tornado, Waterspout Hit Florida

CHICAGO — Storms, storms and more storms hoppedscotched across the nation Friday with a tornado and waterspout touching down near the Tampa-St. Petersburg, Fla., area. There were no reports of injuries. A tornado watch developed across the entire Florida peninsula. A waterspout was sighted west of Clearwater, a funnel cloud southwest of St. Petersburg and Tampa authorities reported hail near the city's airport. A tornado touched down 60 miles southeast of Tampa. Scattered showers and thunderstorms were developing in the Rockies, from the Dakotas to Illinois, from Ohio to New York and Pennsylvania, and along the Carolina coasts.

THE SAGE BROTHERS

Ernest Sage, father of three brothers who were lost at sea Tuesday in the sinking of the USS Evans was in a Lynch hospital Friday suffering from exhaustion and strain. He entered the hospital Wednesday and was expected to be released today. Mrs. Sage was reported at their home near Niobrara, Neb.

Lost when the Evans collided with the Australian carrier were radarman 3.C. Gregory Allen Sage, 21; boatswains mate 2.C. Gary Sage, 22, and Seaman Recruit Kelly Sage, 19. Seventy other sailors were also missing and presumed lost in the disaster.

SULLIVAN BROTHERS

Mrs. Murray Davidson of Waterloo, Iowa knows what war can do to a family. She was 23 when her five brothers, the "fighting Sullivans," died on the Navy cruiser Juneau during World War II. Today, at 50, she understands the feelings of the Sage family, whose three boys are missing and presumed dead after the crash of the destroyer Evans and the aircraft carrier Melbourne Tuesday. "I talked with my mother about it," Mr. Davidson said, "and she asked me if I would write a letter to this family, and I think I might do it."

WINDBLAD BROTHERS

Three Michigan brothers who serve together aboard the U.S. aircraft carrier Hornet know what they want to do. They want to stay together, despite the loss of the Sage brothers in the collision in the South China Sea. And their mother says it's up to "the kids."

The question of permitting three sons to serve on the same ship struck home to Mr. and Mrs. Donald Winblad of Grand Rapids when the three Sage brothers died together in the collision Tuesday. The Winblads' sons — Earl, 22, Edwin, 21, and Robert, 19 — have pledged to stay together if they have a choice, Edwin said Friday. "But maybe now they will split us up," he added.

Robert Taylor 'to Die Soon'

Combined News Services

Death is "inevitable in the immediate future" for film star Robert Taylor, according to a spokesman where the actor was under treatment for lung cancer. The 57-year-old actor's condition is "rapidly deteriorating," the spokesman for St. Johns Hospital said, and the immediate future could mean "a week, maybe more, maybe less."

He said Taylor knew he was suffering from terminal cancer and that he was about to die. The actor was "resting as comfortably as can be expected and is not in too much pain," he added. Taylor's stepson, Michael Thiess, 23, was found dead May 26 in a west Los Angeles motel. He was the son of actress Ursula Thiess, the German-born actress to whom Taylor has been married the past 15 years.

Taylor, star of "The Detectives" television series and of more than 70 movies including "Camille," with Greta Garbo, has been in St. Johns seven times since last September. In October part of his right lung was removed. It was confirmed last December by his wife that he was suffering from cancer. Taylor was previously married to actress Barbara Stanwyck.

THREAT TO POPE

Police privately expressed concern Friday that demonstrations may mar the visit next Tuesday of Pope Paul VI to Geneva, "The Rome of Protestantism." They tended to dismiss as a prank, however, a threatening letter received from Northern Ireland saying plastic bombs and tear gas will "make the Pope regret his visit." The Rev. "We are checking our membership lists now to see if the other two men involved are also members," Mossett said. "We will have a statement on the matter (later today)."

LYNEM WAS arrested at his home, 1527 W. Seventh St., Santa Ana, according to Det. Sgt. Ralph Curiale.

A .38-caliber pistol believed used in the slaying was seized at Lynem's home.

Sasscer was shot once in the abdomen with a .38-caliber firearm and died 40 minutes later at Santa Ana Community Hospital.

A special memorial mass will be celebrated in the slain officers honor at 9 a.m. Sunday at St. Cecilia's Roman Catholic Church, Tustin. The church has been holding an annual memorial mass for peace officers killed in the line of duty for several years.

SASSCER was not a Roman Catholic. Additional services will be held at 10 a.m. Monday at Garden Grove Community Church, 12141 Lewis St., the Rev. Robert Schuller officiating.

Following the services, two close friends of Sasscer's — Santa Ana Police Sgt. James Dittman and officer Richard Faust — will escort Sasscer's body to Los Angeles International Airport.

His wife, Lynn, 21, will accompany the casket to Washington, D. C., where a contingent of officers from the Prince George County, Md., police department will escort the widow and slain lawman to his home town, Upper Marlboro.

Sasscer, a former Upper Marlboro fireman, will be buried in his family's cemetery plot.

THE SLAIN officer was Upper Marlboro Fireman of the Year in 1963 and Rescue Squad Man of the Year in 1964 when he joined the Navy, serving in Vietnam, where he was credited with 60 combat missions aboard a helicopter, it was reported.

He was awarded the Air Medal in 1967 for helping rescue a downed pilot, and, on leaving the Navy, joined Santa Ana police.

Edward J. Allen, Santa Ana police chief, decried the slaying of Sasscer, whose body was taken to Smith & Tuthill Mortuary in that city following the slaying, and said the officer would have had a good future ahead of him in police work.

Goodwill Search Canceled

A Coast Guard search for survivors from the $1.5 million racing schooner Goodwill has been called off, a Coast Guard spokesman said Friday.

However, a team of privately-contracted divers and salvage experts arrived at the wreckage of the yacht Friday.

As many as 12 persons were believed to be aboard when the yacht struck Sacramento Reef off Baja California during late May.

Two bodies have been recovered since the Coast Guard began a search a week ago upon notification from the wife of a guest that the vessel was overdue in Ensenada.

The Goodwill, partly owned by Southern California industrialist Ralph Larrabee, was on a voyage from Cabo San Lucas to Ensenada when it hit the reef, Larrabee was believed aboard.

The Coast Guard spokesman said the search for survivors would not be resumed unless there are significant new developments.

THE ONLY TWO OF 14 SOLDIERS to escape conviction for mutiny at Fort Ord court-martial Friday are Pvt. Larry Lee Sales, 22, Modesto, left, and Pvt. Danny Seals, 22, of Orangeville, right. They were found guilty of lesser charges. Stephen Rowland, 22, St. Louis, Mo., center, was among those convicted of mutiny.

San Joaquin Flooding MUTINY

HANFORD — The Southern San Joaquin Valley neared a state of emergency Friday as water began seeping over the banks of the area's two major river systems. The rainy season ended more than two months ago, but the Kings and San Joaquin rivers reached flood stages this week as melting snow from the Sierra Nevada began filling upstream flood control reservoirs.

THE RESERVOIRS are located on the lower slopes of the towering Sierra range that borders the valley on the east. The lower Coast Range forms the western border of the long, flat, agriculturally rich valley. Population in the threatened areas is sparse.

The San Joaquin River eventually winds north to the delta in Central California and drains into San Francisco Bay. The Kings River drains into Kings and Fresno counties. In normal water years its flow is diverted for irrigation and any surplus percolates into the ground.

THIS YEAR the river volume has more than tripled. The excess has been diverted to Tulare Lake Basin to the south.

The basin, usually dry, now contains more than one million acre feet of water and covers nearly 90,000 acres of prime farm land.

Waters flowing over the banks of the Kings now threaten to inundate another 50,000 to 60,000 acres of farm land.

Youth-Work Project Needs 'More Jobs'

Thousands of disadvantaged young people in Los Angeles County who want to work this summer will be turned away jobless unless businessmen offer more summer jobs, officials of the Greater Los Angeles Youth Advisory Council predicted Friday.

"Employers don't seem to have much to offer," said Don Poole, area youth coordinator for the California State Employment Service. "We just haven't seen a great commitment in terms of actual openings from the private sector."

Poole and other representatives from the public and private sectors have formed the 20-member YAC to coordinate the summer job effort this year. A central phone number, 744-2456, has been made available for employers to call to place job orders.

HOWEVER, few employers in the private sector have responded. Hane Dawson, summer programs coordinator for the Economic and Youth Opportunities Agency, said the lack of job orders "would not indicate that the business community is reacting well."

Mrs. Dawson said many of the 133,000 youths from low-income families in Los Angeles County need summer jobs to return to school in the fall.

"They need to look forward to a future, to know they can get a job when they finish school," she said. "They also need the income for clothes and to help support their families."

She said there is a great backlog of youths who have applied for summer jobs through CSES and are waiting for employers to respond. More than 4,500 youths appeared one Saturday at CSES offices looking for summer work.

A Santa Ana man who is the first in Southern California to be charged under the 1968 federal gun control act has been indicted on 16 counts of violating that act.

Brookes Kent Hanson, 28, was indicted of shipping firearms to various persons throughout the United States during December 1968 and January 1969.

Hanson will be arraigned within a few weeks in Los Angeles Federal Court. He faces a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $5,000 fine on each count. The act forbids delivery to a common carrier for interstate shipment of any firearms destined to any person not licensed as a dealer, importer, manufacturer or collector of firearms.

U.S. Atty. Matt Byrne said Hanson was the first person in Southern California to be charged with illegal interstate shipment of guns under the act.

Hearings on County's Budget Begin Monday

By BILL MAYER From Our L.A. Bureau

The taxpayer will get his chance Monday to take a few swings at the county's proposed $1.7 billion 1969-70 budget.

Formal hearings will start at 9:30 a.m. They are expected to continue for several days.

The Board of Supervisors has arranged a tentative schedule to listen to spokesmen for property owner groups and others who believe suggested appropriations can be reduced. Most of them will have 15-minute periods to make their presentations.

The budget, as drawn by L. S. Hollinger, the county's chief administrative officer, is about $200 million higher than the present one. It would add nearly 29 cents to the tax rate, based on $100 of assessed property value.

Some county officials suggested that the more appropriate places to lodge protests are Sacramento and Washington. Many county expenditures are required by state and federal laws.

"There are three main areas where expenses are skyrocketing — salaries, welfare and law enforcement," said Supervisor Burton Chace. "Our hands are pretty well tied on each."

"By charter we have to approve prevailing wages for county employees. The state and federal governments control the purse strings on welfare. And the Sheriff's Department and the courts require additional personnel to meet the demands posed by the rising crime rate."

Hollinger agreed. "The largest single increase," he said, "is for welfare. It requires an 11.8-cent increase in the tax rate. But it should be noted that the recent U.S. Supreme Court decision eliminating residency requirements for welfare recipients is a major factor in our estimates."

The Supreme Court has said a state may not reject a welfare applicant because he has not lived there for any specified period. Officials expect the ruling to bring thousands of new impoverished citizens to this area.

Under present law federal funds are provided only for needy families with dependent children, and state money is provided for those recently dismissed from their jobs.

The chronic single-welfare recipient gets general relief, which is paid entirely from county taxes.

Resolutions approved unanimously by the Board of Supervisors urge the federal and state budgets to carry the entire cost of supporting the indigent.

Nurses Work Without Pay; Claim Understaffing

LOS ANGELES — Off-duty nurses decided to continue to work without pay through today at Cedars of Lebanon Hospital to demonstrate that regular on-duty nurses need more help.

More than 200 nurses also were marching in informational picket lines outside the hospital as they called for more help and for collective bargaining to be established with 240 Los Angeles area hospitals.

The nurses want the hospitals to negotiate with the California Nurses Association, which does bargain directly with Northern California hospitals but has contracts with only five Los Angeles hospitals.

WAGES and working conditions in the Los Angeles area are set at the 240 other hospitals by a survey of prevailing conditions elsewhere, made by the Hospital Council of Southern California.

A spokesman for the nurses said the off-duty nurses began to supplement the regular nurses Thursday "to show the kind of full nursing care patients do not now presently receive due to inadequate staffing."

A spokesman for the hospitals said "it is imperative to the uninterrupted continuation of good patient care" that management deal with the nurses union "through the liaison established with the Hospital Council of Southern California."

Opposes New City Hall

Santa Ana's plan to build a new $3.5 million city hall in the city-county civic center complex was challenged Friday by City Councilman J. Ogden Markel, who said he will oppose the project.

Voters' twice have rejected bonds for financing a new city hall but the plan now is to have it financed by the Civic Center Commission, on a lease-back arrangement.

This plan was used to finance the $14 million County Court House.

Markel said that the city "should take over" the old Court House, now only partly in use. It is on the edge of the civic center.

The old Court House has 34,000 square feet of floor space — but architecturally it is somewhat antiquated as to layout and is not considered efficient. The present city hall is 30,000 square feet in size; the city is planning one three times that big.

Orange County's supervisors decided to keep the old Court House as a landmark — and eventually convert it into a museum.

gram Lynem is a member of the party.

"We are checking our membership lists now to see if the other two men involved are also members," Mossett said. "We will have a statement on the matter (later today)."

LYNEM WAS arrested at his home, 1527 W. Seventh St., Santa Ana, according to Det. Sgt. Ralph Curiale.

A .38-caliber pistol believed used in the slaying was seized at Lynem's home.

Sasscer was shot once in the abdomen with a .38-caliber firearm and died 40 minutes later at Santa Ana Community Hospital.

A special memorial mass will be celebrated in the slain officers honor at 9 a.m. Sunday at St. Cecilia's Roman Catholic Church, Tustin. The church has been holding an annual memorial mass for peace officers killed in the line of duty for several years.

SASSCER was not a Roman Catholic.

Additional services will be held at 10 a.m. Monday at Garden Grove Community Church, 12141 Lewis St., the Rev. Robert Schuller officiating.

Following the services, two close friends of Sasscer's — Santa Ana Police Sgt. James Dittman and officer Richard Faust — will escort Sasscer's body to Los Angeles International Airport.

His wife, Lynn, 21, will accompany the casket to Washington, D. C., where a contingent of officers from the Prince George County, Md., police department will escort the widow and slain lawman to his home town, Upper Marlboro.

Sasscer, a former Upper Marlboro fireman, will be buried in his family's cemetery plot.

THE SLAIN officer was Upper Marlboro Fireman of the Year in 1963 and Rescue Squad Man of the Year in 1964 when he joined the Navy, serving in Vietnam, where he was credited with 60 combat missions aboard a helicopter, it was reported.

He was awarded the Air Medal in 1967 for helping rescue a downed pilot, and, on leaving the Navy, joined Santa Ana police.

San Joaquin Flooding MUTINY

HANFORD (AP) — The Southern San Joaquin Valley neared a state of emergency Friday as water began seeping over the banks of the area's two major river systems.

The rainy season ended more than two months ago, but the Kings and San Joaquin rivers reached flood stages this week as melting snow from the Sierra Nevada began filling upstream flood control reservoirs.

THE RESERVOIRS are located on the lower slopes of the towering Sierra range that borders the valley on the east.

The lower Coast Range forms the western border of the long, flat, agriculturally rich valley.

The San Joaquin River

eventually winds north to the delta in Central California and drains into San Francisco Bay.

The Kings River drains into Kings and Fresno counties. In normal water years its flow is diverted for irrigation and any surplus percolates into the ground.

THIS YEAR the river volume has more than tripled. The excess has been diverted to Tulare Lake Basin to the south.

The basin, usually dry, now contains more than one million acre feet of water and covers nearly 90,000 acres of prime farm land.

Waters flowing over the banks of the Kings now threaten to inundate another 50,000 to 60,000 acres of farm land.

Volunteer crews have been on duty 24 hours daily shoring up levees.

Officials say they have a 50-50 chance of containing the water without further damage.

"We're holding our own," said Frank Irwin, administrative officer of the Kings County Public Works Department.

"But if Pine Flat Dam goes over the top, there is big trouble."

THE DAM, which is the Kings River upstream control point, has a capacity of 1,020,000 acre feet.

Storage Friday stood at 984,343 acre feet, and was rapidly rising toward capacity.

Inflow was 25,293 cubic feet of water per second. Outflow was 18,180 cubic feet.

The Army Engineers were prepared to increase the outflow by 2,000 cubic feet a second if necessary.

Cliff Boyer, Fresno County natural resources coordinator, predicted, however, that the engineers would lose control and water would begin spilling over the dam within two or three days.

THAT WOULD raise the river flow to more than 25,000 cubic feet a second and spread water throughout thinly-settled areas in Kings and Fresno counties.

Larger communities are protected by levee systems, and crews were busy Friday erecting secondary defenses.

The American Red Cross alerted mobile units, and Civil defense organizations in both counties were setting up emergency evacuation centers for use if needed.

A FEW FARM families have voluntarily evacuated low areas.

Sam Holman, a farmer in the Laton area, said, "I am just waiting to see what happens. I'm not ready to evacuate yet."

Most townspeople in the vicinity expressed similar feelings.

THE OCTOBER protest came three days after a stockade guard shot and killed a fleeing prisoner, Pvt. Richard Bunch, 19, of Dayton, Ohio.

Army authorities ruled Bunch's death was justifiable homicide.

Santa Ana's plan to build a new $3.5 million city hall in the city-county civic center complex was challenged Friday by City Councilman J. Ogden Markel, who said he will oppose the project.

ONE AARS WINNER

1970's only All-American Rose Selection is a hybrid tea rose, "First Prize".

This winner has huge, shapely, deep pink to light red roses set on a medium sized, broad bushy plant.

The extra long three inch buds, slowly open in a spiral until they become full blown, open centered blooms, five to six inches in diameter.

First Prize has 20-30 deep pink, strong, thick petals of a satiny texture. The inside of these very large petals is of a lighter, almost glowing pink, giving the open flower a distinctly bicolor appearance.

Plants of First Prize are continually in bloom, with comparatively small bushes producing as many as 50 roses a season. When the flowers fade, they drop off cleanly, leaving the plant looking neat and tidy. As an extra bonus, First Prize has a delicate, old-rose fragrance.

This new winner should immediately become a favorite with both the gardeners and the decorators, as its blooms are very long-lasting — bush life is usually up to two weeks and cut flowers stay fresh four to five days.

The roses are produced on thick, strong, 12-16 inch stems, at first in clusters on the vigorous spring canes and later in the season on stems of single blooms. The plants average 2½ to 3' in height in the upper New York state test gardens where the variety originated. The numerous canes are upright, well branched, and fast growing, covered with dark green, leathery foliage, highly resistant to disease.

First Prize is a hybrid of the late Eugene S. Boerner, and is the fourteenth of his many original selections to have won the coveted All-America Rose Selections award. In addition to having been chosen the only AARS winner for 1970, this rose has already been honored with a silver certificate from Portland, Oregon, which, without doubt, is the first of many awards that it will receive as time goes on.

Q. Enclosed leaf is from my "Mother's Day" gift plant. I was told it is a Chinese Evergreen, strictly an indoor house plant. Can you tell me anything about it? Some of the leaves are turning yellowish. It has clusters of red and yellow berries. Lots of new green leaves coming up at the bottom.

A. Having become accustomed to growing outdoors, it is difficult for it to adapt in the house. Outdoors didn't get the fanning or care or water, as it would indoors. More frequent watering plus possible lack of same amount of light. It had been accustomed to could account for much. You rarely see bamboo growing in indoor house plants. The remaining half of the disturbed plant probably is getting too much water because of the division.

Q. Can you send me a few sugar beet seeds for a home garden? Will be glad to send you a check for same.

A. Write Jerry Burke, Burpee Seed Co., Riverside, California and have him obtain some for you. Tell him you cannot find it at vegetable seed racks in the nurseries. Specify the amount you want or the space you wish to sow the seeds.

GARDENING

By JOE LITTLEFIELD

Of all the summer blooming perennials that provide blue tone color flowers, Limonium perzizii (Statice) "Sea Lavender" serves a double-use purpose. The round head, comprising hundreds of purplish-lavender, spotted with white florets, not much bigger than a pin head, present a baby's breath-like blossoms on about three feet tall stems. The plants furnish a needed blue color in the sunny garden. The crape paper-like blossoms may be dried and used in dry arrangements lasting several years.

SEA LAVENDER... Limonium perzizii

The large round flower heads are cut with the long stems when the blossoms reach their peak of blooming, shaken gently, loosely tied together and hung dry in the shade. A month or so later they are taken down, shaken gently again to remove possible loose dry blossoms, then arranged in a container.

WE WERE under the impression that sea lavenders thrived only along the coast. We finally learned they'll grow well in drier, hotter areas including smog, but don't expect them to survive winter frosts.

You'll create a delightful color combination by setting some hybrid gazanias in front of sea lavenders. The hybrid gazanias furnish bright and soft orange shades, yellows, bronze occasionally reddish color, or white flowers.

They are obtainable in pony packs or flats and come in individual colors.

An alternate color contrast suggestion is to plant orange or yellow colors of dwarf marigolds.

JUST BECAUSE weather is becoming warmer doesn't mean we stop planting. We shouldn't transplant camellias, or certain other types of active growing shrubs from the ground, and replant them to another garden area. However, plants in containers may be planted into larger size, or into the ground. The same with trees. Some nurseries have bailed-burlapped plants with firm soil around the roots. They too may be set out. Shade them for about a week if they were in the nursery lathe house, and you set them out in the sunny location.

One shrub different from most is Ternstroemia, a close relative of the camellia and tea plants. It thrives, sun-tanning. Foliage is green color or if planted in the shade. Planted in sun the leafage turns bronzy shades, sometimes almost dark red. In its way it is just as showy as the liquidambar tree fall foliage. Along the coast in the sun, it colors up much slower. In hot dry windy sectors it should be in partial shade.

Pinch back extra long new branch growths of camellias. This forces extra side branches to grow out. Foliage, bathes camellias several times a week to provide humid condition. One of the camellia bud-drop problems is due to gardener not thoroughly soaking the plants throughout the whole root system. Fertilize them about monthly intervals.

Azaleas may be growing poorly due to a lack of sufficient water because the planting medium around the plants' root balls are loosely packed. The water gushes past the roots too fast for the plants to use.

Young shamel ash trees should be topped twice a year for the first three years. Cut the current season's upright growth back one-third. Cut the outward-spreading branch growth one-fourth. This principle of pruning forces the tree to develop much more shorter spreading-branch growth instead of growing 50-to-60 feet high and shading the neighbors home instead of yours.

ONE AARS WINNER

1970's only All-American Rose Selection is a hybrid tea rose, "First Prize".

This winner has huge, shapely, deep pink to light red roses set on a medium sized, broad bushy plant.

The extra long three inch buds, slowly open in a spiral until they become full blown, open centered blooms, five to six inches in diameter.

First Prize has 20-30 deep pink, strong, thick petals of a satiny texture. The inside of these very large petals is of a lighter, almost glowing pink, giving the open flower a distinctly bicolor appearance.

Plants of First Prize are continually in bloom, with comparatively small bushes producing as many as 50 roses a season. When the flowers fade, they drop off cleanly, leaving the plant looking neat and tidy. As an extra bonus, First Prize has a delicate, old-rose fragrance.

This new winner should immediately become a favorite with both the gardeners and the decorators, as its blooms are very long-lasting — bush life is usually up to two weeks and cut flowers stay fresh four to five days.

The roses are produced on thick, strong, 12-16 inch stems, at first in clusters on the vigorous spring canes and later in the season on stems of single blooms. The plants average 2 1/2 to 3' in height in the upper New York state test gardens where the variety originated. The numerous canes are upright, well branched, and fast growing, covered with dark green, leathery foliage, highly resistant to disease.

First Prize is a hybrid of the late Eugene S. Boerner, and is the fourteenth of his many originations to have won the coveted All-America Rose Selections award. In addition to having been chosen the only AARS winner for 1970, this rose has already been honored with a silver certificate from Portland, Oregon, which, without doubt, is the first of many awards that it will receive as time goes on.

Q. Enclosed leaf is from my "Mother's Day" gift plant. I was told it is a Chinese Evergreen, strictly an indoor house plant. Can you tell me anything about it? Some of the leaves are turning yellowish. It has clusters of red and yellow berries. Lots of new green leaves coming up at the bottom.

A. Chinese evergreen plant is Aglaonema modestum, a tropical Asian plant. Yellow leaves may indicate keeping the soil too moist. Watering too frequently can cause this. Fancy wrapper around the clay pot and pot bottom, retains the moisture longer, which could be another cause. To test poke finger into soil near inside edge of pot. If soil clings to finger, don't water.

Q. I've had a small leaved bamboo growing and doing nicely at northeast corner of the house for 10 years. Upon potting half of it to move into the house, I find many leaves are half brown. It doesn't make an attractive house plant. What can I do to correct this?

A. Having become accustomed to growing outdoors, it is difficult for it to adapt in the house. Outdoors didn't get the fanning or care or water, as it would indoors. More frequent watering plus possible lack of same amount of light it had been accustomed to could account for much. You rarely see bamboo growing as indoor house plants. The remaining half of the disturbed plant probably is getting too much water because of the division.

Q. Can you send me a few sugar beet seeds for a home garden? Will be glad to send you a check for same.

A. Write Jerry Burke, Burpee Seed Co., Riverside, California and have him obtain some for you. Tell him you cannot find it at vegetable seed racks in the nurseries. Specify the amount you want or the space you wish to sow the seeds.

Of all the summer blooming perennials that provide blue tone color flowers, Limonium perezii (Statice) "Sea Lavender" serves a double-use purpose. The round head, comprising hundreds of purplish-lavender, spotted with white florets not much bigger than a pin head, present a baby's breath-like blossoms on about three feet tall stems. The plants furnish a needed blue color in the sunny garden. The crape paper-like blossoms may be dried and used in dry arrangements lasting several years.

The large round flower heads are cut with the long stems when the blossoms reach their peak of blooming, shaken gently, loosely tied together and hung dry in the shade. A month or so later they are taken down, shaken gently again to remove possible loose dry blossoms, then arranged in a container.

WE WERE under the impression that sea lavers thrived only along the coast. We finally learned they'll grow well in drier, hotter areas including smog, but don't expect them to survive winter frosts.

SEA LAVENDER... Limonium perezii

They are obtainable in pony packs or flats and come in individual colors.

An alternate color contrast suggestion is to plant orange or yellow colors of dwarf marigolds.

JUST BECAUSE weather is becoming warmer doesn't mean we stop planting. We shouldn't transplant camellias or certain other types of active growing shrubs from the ground, and replant them to another garden area. However, plants in containers may be planted into larger size, or into the ground. The same with trees. Some nurseries have balled-and-burlapped plants with firm soil around the roots. They too may be set out. Shade them for about a week if they were in the nursery lathe house, and you set them out in the sunny location.

One shrub different from most is Ternstroemia, a close relative of the camellia and tea plants. It thrives sun-tanning. Foliage is green color or if planted in the shade. Turned in sun the leafage turns bronzy shades, sometimes almost dark red. In its way it is just as showy as the liquidambar tree fall foliage. Along the coast in the sun, it colors up much slower. In hot dry windy sectors it should be in partial shade.

Nixon Talks About the Draft

By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

NEWPORT BEACH — President Nixon went to work an hour early Friday in his Newport Inn summer White House office, huddling first with his foreign policy adviser, Dr. Henry Kissinger, and then with 10 young people to discuss the draft.

Answering the youths' complaint that selective service boards "deal with the young but don't communicate with the young," Nixon announced establishment of a nationwide system of youth advisory committees to the Selective Service System.

He reaffirmed his conviction that the military draft should be abolished in favor of an entirely volunteer armed service, but said, "Unfortunately it is not possible to effect this change under present international circumstances."

UNTIL A volunteer army can become a reality," Nixon said, "we must exert every effort to make the selective service system as fair and equitable as possible."

"We believe," he said, "that those who administer our draft laws should systematically seek advice from young people about young people."

Nixon said the selective service system "is particularly important in the lives of young people and yet often seems to be particularly remote from their influence." He said he hopes the youth advisory groups in all 50 states will "result in a better informed and more responsive draft mechanism."

PRESIDENT STROLLS IN NEWPORT INN GARDEN WITH YOUNG GUESTS
Youngsters From Five States Discussed Selective Service With Nixon

JOHN LLOYD, 19, a student at Drake University, Des Moines, Iowa, served as spokesman for the nine young men and one girl who met with the President in his villa at the Newport Inn. Lloyd told newsmen he didn't think any of the 10 "wanted to junk the whole draft system."

Larry McKibben, 22, of Ames, Iowa, said many draft board members are older individuals "no longer in contact with the ideals of the young." He recommended appointment of members who are young, "like 30."

Only girl in the group,

Debra Anderson, 18-year-old Lansing, Mich. high school senior, said when asked the role of a girl in draft discussions, "our boy friends and husbands are being drafted, so we feel close to it."

JESSE GREEN, 26, of New York, a Negro with an Afro hair style, said he spoke with the President of the need for blacks and other minority representation not only on selective service boards but on other boards in different parts of government.

Harold Studley, a 26-year-old veteran from New York, said the 10 discussed no specific draft inequities with Nixon because "the whole system seem inequitable and we need to find out why."

President Nixon took off from the San Mateo Point Coast Guard helicopter pad at 8:47 a.m., about an hour ahead of schedule, leaving reporters in the press pool behind. They caught up about 10 minutes later.

THE EARLY start gave Nixon 40 or 45 minutes with Dr. Kissinger "going over papers relating to Midway." — the Sunday summit meeting on Midway Island with South Vietnam President Nguyen

Van Thieu.

Press secretary Ron Ziegler said Nixon had talked with Kissinger by phone Thursday night also. He said they would confer again this afternoon and yet again Saturday en route to Honolulu.

The President invited photographers into his Villa San Remo to take pictures of the visiting young people, seated at a green felt-covered conference table in a room overlooking a swimming pool.

Nixon did a little chamber of commerce work on the youths, remarking on the coast's surfing activity and the pleasures of Disneyland.

EVANS

was berthed in Manila Bay.

During the course of the dinner, Melbourne's Capt. J. P. Stevenson talked about two previous collisions the Australian carrier had been involved in and, according to McLemore, said "the Australian government cannot stand another collision."

The reference, in particular, was to the collision between the Melbourne and the Australian destroyer Voyager on Feb. 10, 1964, off the Australian coast. That accident cost 82 lives, all from the Voyager.

McLemore said that after he was rescued and had reported his presence on the Melbourne he again saw Stevenson.

"I was virtually naked and wrapped in a towel," the American officer said. "We embraced . . . and said to each other, 'I'm sorry.' We said it almost together, on the bridge of the Melbourne."

The Evans' executive officer said he was asleep in his cabin on the main deck when the collision came.

"The first thing I remember is being thrown from my bunk to the deck," McMichael related. "I was disoriented. I reached out to turn on my light and it wasn't there. I stepped toward my desk but walked out the door instead."

"We already were just about on our beam and the wardroom was half full of water. I thought it was time to get out."

"I pulled myself out onto the side of the ship. Most of it (the forward half) was on its side, and the stack was half in water. I had no reason not to believe that the whole ship, instead of half of it, was under water," McMichael said.

"I swam 75 feet away. I was backstroking because it is supposed to be safest that way."

"EVERYTHING stood out in startling clarity because of the bright moon. Then the (bow section of the ship) sank . . ."

Most of the 199 survivors, including two flown to Camranh Bay in Vietnam for emergency hospital treatment, were in the rear half of the Evans, which did not sink. It is being towed by Navy tug to Subic Bay.

A member of the Evans' crew who witnessed the actual collision was Signalman 2.C. Stephen Kraus of Pomona, who was standing on the destroyer's signal bridge. (On the main bridge.

"Suddenly I realized that I didn't see the three red lights that mark the stern. It was the bow coming right at us. I heard the Melbourne's general alarm . . ."

"I ran into the signal shack to tell the messenger to sound our alarm, but x x x the Melbourne hit 10 feet behind where I was standing. The next thing I knew I was in the water."

Father, Son Parted in South China Seas

A young Costa Mesa Navyman, whose sleeping shipmate-father lived to tell the tale, met death in the South China sea while on watch in the forward engine room of the USS Frank E. Evans.

Senior Chief Gunner's Mate Lawrence John (Larry) Reilly Sr., who had re-enlisted to be with his 20-year-old son aboard the Long Beach-based destroyer, said at his Costa Mesa home Friday:

"That's right where it (the Australian carrier Melbourne) hit. 'I didn't see him . . ."

"I WAS sound asleep in my bunk (in the aft section) and heard the crunching of metal," said the 45-year-old Navy veteran. "It sounded like a huge can opener — you could hear the metal ripping."

"The first thing I knew was when the bulkhead caved in and turned over. The ship was on her side and we had to climb up through a door."

"I don't know how we got out. I just found myself in the water. It was pretty unreal," Chief Reilly said.

"When we were in the water it was dark. I held onto some wooden deck-gratings, knocked loose from the bridge."

"STANLEY, a friend, was the strongest swimmer, and he helped me get away from the sinking forward area."

"We were in the water about 15 minutes before some Australians in a boat picked us up. The water was warm and calm."

Top Nixon Aides Fly to Honolulu

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon's highest diplomatic and military advisers flew to Honolulu Friday to join him there for strategy talks on the eve of Nixon's summit meeting on Midway Island with South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu.

One of the travelers, Secretary of State William P. Rogers, left under strong pressure by members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to prevail on the President to avoid any new commitments to the Thieu regime.

ROGERS was noncommittal. He told newsmen after a private, 2½-hour session with the committee that "I will pass it on to the President."

Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., the committee chairman, has expressed concern that the Administration apparently intends to "control Vietnam by proxy" and thus delay indefinitely an end to the war.

Before they departed Andrews Air Force Base, MD., Rogers said he had no comment when told that Fulbright had expressed fear that new commitments to the present Saigon regime might be made on Midway.

ROGERS laughed and said: "He told me the same thing this morning."

Vietnam is Nixon's War Now, Galbraith Tells ADA

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John Kenneth Galbraith, national chairman of Americans for Democratic Action, said Friday that the Nixon administration had worked itself into "a ludicrous negotiating position" and that "from now on we will have to say that it's Mr. Nixon's war."

Galbraith, Harvard University economist and former ambassador to India, made it clear at the start of the annual ADA convention that the liberal or-

Nixon-Thieu Meeting—Lots of Room for Disagreement

SAIGON (AP) — Many South Vietnamese officials feel that the summit meeting on Midway between President Nixon and President Nguyen Van Thieu will be the most crucial allied diplomatic meeting of the year.

The cautious Saigon leader has made thorough preparations far overshadowing anything done for his diplomatic encounters with President Johnson.

The old play-it-by-ear attitude of South Vietnamese officialdom has largely disappeared as the Paris peace talks continue and the realization deepens that Nixon is determined to make an all-out try to de-Americanize the war.

AT MIDWAY, in the first meeting as presidents between the two men, Thieu will be probing to nail down just how fast and how far Nixon is determined to go.

Although they are agreed in principle on Nixon's eight-point peace plan, there is vast room for disagreement on the actual mechanics of carrying it out. Diplomatic sources say Thieu was well aware of the pitfalls in agreeing to the Nixon plan and that the early summit meetings was part of his ploy.

While American officials in Saigon have studiously emphasized unity between South Vietnam and the United States, they also have been listening closely to Thieu's recent speeches threatening to fight alone rather than accept a coalition government with the Communists. During his state visits to sympathetic regimes in Seoul and Taipei, Thieu said he would not even talk about a coalition government in the Midway sessions.

THIS WAS evidently Thieu's way of sugar-coating the problem for domestic consumption. An integral part of Nixon's plan is free elections for South Vietnam, and free elections inevitably would mean some form of Communist participation in electoral planning and processes.

Coupled with likely differences over electoral procedures are questions concerning the timing of any American troop withdrawal and the readiness of South Vietnam's military machine to fill the gap.

On all these points, diplomatic informants say, Nixon wants maximum speed while Thieu's attitude is cautious and apprehensive.

He is particularly concerned that an American troop withdrawal, without a mutual North Vietnamese pullback negotiated at Paris, could have severe repercussions within South Vietnam.

Rogers Takes Nuclear Lesson—Changes Views

New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State William P. Rogers was given a crash course Friday by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on the intricacies of nuclear disarmament and he emerged with the conclusion that continued testing of multiple warheads could complicate strategic arms control.

On Thursday at a State Department news conference Rogers had taken the position that testing of multiple warheads would not affect chances for an agreement with the Soviet Union on limiting strategic weapons.

BUT FRIDAY, after a lengthy closed-door meeting with the Foreign Relations Committee, he said he believed that continued testing of multiple warheads over the next few months could raise "new problems of inspection" in any future arms control agreement.

Perhaps indicative of the new relationship developing between the committee and Secretary Rogers was the fact that instead of engaging in argumentation—as happened often during the tenure of former Secretary of State Dean Rusk in the Johnson Administration—the committee members found that Rogers was willing to accept some advice from the committee and to sometimes modify his views.

Javits Sees End of Viet Involvement

LONDON (UPI) — Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., predicted Friday that the United States will start extricating itself from the Vietnam war this year and enter into a closer relationship with Europe.

He said he found a "wonderful response" towards the Nixon Administration's moves to bring the U.S. closer to Europe during his five-nation tour, which followed a visit to Israel.

Javits, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said President Nixon should be given an "entirely free hand" to negotiate with President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam in their forthcoming talks on Midway Island.

"BUT IN NO case should we accept a veto," by the Saigon government which would prevent the U.S. from reaching a "just and honorable" peace settlement with the Communists, Javits said.

The senator urged the Nixon Administration to "contemplate a reduction" of U.S. forces in Vietnam as a step towards peace. But he said it was unlikely the Senate would introduce a resolution this year advocating such a reduction.

After U.S. troop withdrawals, Javits said, "there should be no question—no doubt that we would continue to back the South Vietnamese with money and material."

Nixon Talks About the Draft

Political Editor

NEWPORT BEACH — President Nixon went to work an hour early Friday in his Newport Inn summer White House office, huddling first with his foreign policy adviser, Dr. Henry Kissinger, and then with 10 young people to discuss the draft.

"Answering the youths' complaint that selective service boards 'deal with the young but don't communicate with the young,' Nixon announced establishment of a nationwide system of youth advisory committees to the Selective Service System.

He reaffirmed his conviction that the military draft should be abolished in favor of an entirely volunteer armed service, but said, "unfortunately it is not possible to effect this change under present international circumstances."

UNTIL A volunteer army can become a reality," Nixon said, "we must exert every effort to make the selective service system as fair and equitable as possible.

"We believe," he said, "that those who administer our draft laws should systematically seek advice from young people about young people."

Nixon said the selective service system "is particularly important in the lives of young people and yet often seems to be particularly remote from their influence." He said he hopes the youth advisory groups in all 50 states will "result in a better informed and more responsive draft mechanism."

Youngsters From Five States Discussed Selective Service With Nixon

JOHN LLOYD, 19, a student at Drake University, Des Moines, Iowa, served as spokesman for the nine young men and one girl who met with the President in his villa at the Newport Inn. Lloyd told newsmen he didn't think any of the 10 "wanted to junk the whole draft system."

Larry McKibben, 22, of Ames, Iowa, said many draft board members are older individuals "no longer in contact with the ideals of the young." He recommended appointment of members who are younger, "like 30."

Only girl in the group,

Debra Anderson, 18-year-old Lansing, Mich. high school senior, said when asked the role of a girl in draft discussions, "our boy friends and husbands are being drafted, so we feel close to it."

JESSE GREEN, 26, of New York, a Negro with an Afro hair style, said he spoke with the President of the need for blacks and other minority representation not only on selective service boards but on other parts of government.

Harold Studley, a 26-year-old veteran from New York, said the 10 discussed no specific draft inequities with Nixon because "the whole system seem inequitable and we need to find out why."

President Nixon took off from the San Mateo Point Coast Guard helicopter pad at 8:47 a.m., about an hour ahead of schedule, leaving reporters in the press pool behind. They caught up about 10 minutes later.

THE EARLY start gave Nixon 40 or 45 minutes with Dr. Kissinger "going over papers relating to Midway," — the Sunday summit meeting on Midway Island with South Vietnam President Nguyen

Van Thieu.

Press secretary Ron Ziegler said Nixon had talked with Kissinger by phone Thursday night also. He said they would confer again this afternoon and yet again Saturday en route to Honolulu.

The President invited photographers into his Villa San Remo to take pictures of the visiting young people, seated at a green felt-covered conference table in a room overlooking a swimming pool.

Nixon did a little chamber of commerce work on the youths, remarking on the coast's surfing activity and the pleasures of Disneyland.

Top Nixon Aides Fly to Honolulu

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon's highest diplomatic and military advisers flew to Honolulu Friday to join him there for strategy talks on the eve of Nixon's summit meeting on Midway Island with South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu.

One of the travelers, Secretary of State William P. Rogers, left under strong pressure by members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to prevail on the President to avoid any new commitments to the Thieu regime.

ROGERS was noncommittal. He told newsmen after a private, 2½-hour session with the committee that "I will pass it on to the President."

Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., the committee chairman, has expressed concern that the Administration apparently intends to "control Vietnam by proxy" and thus delay indefinitely an end to the war.

Before they departed Andrews Air Force Base, MD., Rogers said he had no comment when told that Fulbright had expressed fear that new commitments to the present Saigon regime might be made on Midway.

ROGERS laughed and said: "He told me the same thing this morning."

Nixon-Thieu Meeting—Lots of Room for Disagreement

SAIGON (AP) — Many South Vietnamese officials feel that the summit meeting on Midway between President Nixon and President Nguyen Van Thieu will be the most crucial allied diplomatic meeting of the year.

The cautious Saigon leader has made thorough preparations far overshadowing anything done for his diplomatic encounters with President Johnson.

The old play-it-by-ear attitude of South Vietnamese officialdom has largely disappeared as the Paris peace talks continue and the realization deepens that Nixon is determined to make an all-out try to de-Americanize the war.

AT MIDWAY, in the first meeting as presidents between the two men, Thieu will be probing to nail down just how fast and how far Nixon is determined to go.

Although they are agreed in principle on Nixon's eight-point peace plan, there is vast room for disagreement on the actual mechanics of carrying it out. Diplomatic sources say Thieu was well aware of the pitfalls in agreeing to the Nixon plan and that the early summit meetings was part of his price.

While American officials in Saigon have studiously emphasized unity between South Vietnam and the United States, they also have been listening closely to Thieu's recent speeches threatening to fight alone rather than accept a coalition government with the Communists. During his state visits to sympathetic regimes in Seoul and Taipei, Thieu said he would not even talk about a coalition government in the Midway sessions.

THIS WAS evidently Thieu's way of sugar-coating the problem for domestic consumption. An integral part of Nixon's plan is free elections for South Vietnam, and free elections inevitably would mean some form of Communist participation in electoral planning and processes.

Coupled with likely differences over electoral procedures are questions concerning the timing of any American troop withdrawal and the readiness of South Vietnam's military machine to fill the gap.

On all these points, diplomatic informants say, Nixon wants maximum speed while Thieu's attitude is cautious and apprehensive.

He is particularly concerned that an American troop withdrawal, without a mutual North Vietnamese pullback negotiated at Paris, could have severe repercussions within South Vietnam.

Rogers Takes Nuclear Lesson—Changes Views

New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State William P. Rogers was given a cram course Friday by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on the intricacies of nuclear disarmament and he emerged with the conclusion that continued testing of multiple warheads could complicate strategic arms control.

On Thursday at a State Department news conference Rogers had taken the position that testing of multiple warheads would not affect chances for an agreement with the Soviet Union on limiting strategic weapons.

BUT FRIDAY, after a lengthy closed-door meeting with the Foreign Relations Committee, he said he believed that continued testing of multiple warheads over the next few months could raise "new problems of inspection" in any future arms control agreement.

Perhaps indicative of the new relationship developing between the committee and Secretary Rogers was the fact that instead of engaging in argumentation—as happened often during the tenure of former Secretary of State Dean Rusk in the Johnson Administration—the committee members found that Rogers was willing to accept some advice from the committee and to sometimes modify his views.

Javits Sees End of Viet Involvement

LONDON (UPI) — Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., predicted Friday that the United States will start extricating itself from the Vietnam war this year and enter into a closer relationship with Europe.

He said he found a "wonderful response" towards the Nixon Administration's moves to bring the U.S. closer to Europe during his five-nation tour, which followed a visit to Israel.

Javits, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said President Nixon should be given an "entirely free hand" to negotiate with President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam in their forthcoming talks on Midway Island.

"BUT IN NO case should we accept a veto," by the Saigon government which would prevent the U.S. from reaching a "just and honorable" peace settlement with the Communists, Javits said.

The senator urged the Nixon Administration to "contemplate a reduction" of U.S. forces in Vietnam as a step towards peace. But he said it was unlikely the Senate would introduce a resolution this year advocating such a reduction.

After U.S. troop withdrawals, Javits said, "there should be no question—no doubt that we would continue to back the South Vietnamese with money and material."

was berthed in Marila Bay.

During the course of the dinner, Melbourne's Capt. J. P. Stevenson talked about two previous collisions the Australian carrier had been involved in and, according to McLeMORE, said "the Australian government cannot stand another collision."

The reference, in particular, was to the collision between the Melbourne and the Australian destroyer Voyager on Feb. 10, 1964, off the Australian coast. That accident cost 82 lives, all from the Voyager.

McLeMORE said that after he was rescued and had reported his presence on the Melbourne he again saw Stevenson.

"I was virtually naked and wrapped in a towel," the American officer said. "We embraced . . . and said to each other, 'I'm sorry.' We said it almost together, on the bridge of the Melbourne."

The Evans' executive officer said he was asleep in his cabin on the main deck when the collision came.

"The first thing I remember is being thrown from my bunk to the deck," McMichael related. "I was disoriented. I reached out to turn on my light and it wasn't there. I stepped toward my desk but walked out the door instead."

"We already were just about on our beam and the wardroom was half full of water. I thought it was time to get out."

"I pulled myself out onto the side of the ship. Most of it (the forward half) was on its side, and the stack was half in water. I had no reason not to believe that the whole ship, instead of half of it, was under water," McMichael said.

"I swam 75 feet away. I was backstroking because it is supposed to be safest that way."

"EVERYTHING stood out in startling clarity because of the bright moon. Then the (bow section of the ship) sank . . ."

Most of the 199 survivors, including two flown to Camranh Bay in Vietnam for emergency hospital treatment, were in the rear half of the Evans, which did not sink. It is being towed by Navy tug to Subic Bay.

A member of the Evans' crew who witnessed the actual collision was Signalman 2.C. Stephen Kraus of Pomona, who was standing on the destroyer's signal bridge. (On the main bridge.

"Suddenly I realized that I didn't see the three red lights that mark the stern. It was the bow coming right at us. I heard the Melbourne's general alarm . . ."

"I ran into the signal shack to tell the messenger to sound our alarm, but x x x the Melbourne hit 10 feet behind where I was standing. The next thing I knew I was in the water."

Father, Son Parted in South China Seas

A young Costa Mesa Navymen, whose sleeping shipmate-father lived to tell the tale, met death in the South China sea while on watch in the forward engine room of the USS Frank E. Evans.

Senior Chief Gunner's Mate Lawrence John (Larry) Reilly Sr., who had re-enlisted to be with his 20-year-old son aboard the Long Beach-based destroyer, said at his Costa Mesa home Friday:

"That's right where it (the Australian carrier Melbourne) hit. 'I didn't see him . . ."

"I WAS sound asleep in my bunk (in the aft section) and heard the crunching of metal," said the 45-year-old Navy veteran. "It sounded like a huge can opener — you could hear the metal ripping."

"The first thing I knew was when the bulkhead caved in and turned over. The ship was on her side and we had to climb up through a door."

"I don't know how we got out. I just found myself in the water. It was pretty unreal," Chief Reilly said.

"When we were in the water it was dark. I held onto some wooden deck gratings, knocked loose from the bridge."

"STANLEY, a friend, was the strongest swimmer, and he helped me get away from the sinking forward area."

"We were in the water about 15 minutes before some Australians in a boat picked us up. The water was warm and calm."

Vietnam is Nixon's War Now, Galbraith Tells ADA

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John Kenneth Galbraith, national chairman of Americans for Democratic Action, said Friday that the Nixon administration had worked itself into "a ludicrous negotiating position" and that "from now on we will have to say that it's Mr. Nixon's war."

Galbraith, Harvard University economist and former ambassador to India, made it clear at the start of the annual ADA convention that the liberal organization was dissatisfied with the Nixon Administration.

He told a news conference that President Nixon's Administration was "still pursuing the errors of the Johnson administration" in Vietnam.

REAGAN OPPOSITION EXPECTED

New Tax Reform Proposal

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Key legislators Friday unveiled an ambitious $1-billion tax reform plan that leaders of both parties were confident could be worked into an acceptable tax reform bill.

The plan includes $308 million for schools, a reduction of homeowners' property taxes, a break for low income renters and a takeover by the state of county welfare costs.

Funds for the tax relief would be raised by a half-cent increase in the sales tax, closing income tax loopholes which benefit the rich, and hiking the taxes for oil companies, churches, banks and corporations.

The proposal was revealed by William T. Bagley, R-San Anselmo, chairman of the Assembly Revenue and Taxation Committee, during a hearing on various tax reform and revision bills.

Although many assembly leaders disagreed with some aspects of the overall proposal, the greatest opposition was anticipated from Gov. Ronald Reagan.

THE PLAN includes withholding of income tax payments — a device Reagan ardently opposes.

The committee will draft a formal bill next week. It is expected to be based on the $1 billion plan devised by a bipartisan panel of six Assemblymen — three Republicans and three Democrats.

The state assumption of all county welfare costs, recommended by the panel, would save the counties $322 million. This is designed to reduce local property taxes.

However, critics of the panel's proposal said the counties probably would not reduce the taxes unless ordered to by the state.

Property tax relief worth $234 million would be provided, under the plan, by increasing the present $750 homeowners property tax exemption to $1,500 in 1970-71.

The panel's proposal also would:

—Levy a brand new tax on the income from nonreligious businesses owned by churches.

—Provide a tax break for low income renters and senior citizens.

—Provide counties about $5 million in partial compensation for losses under a new state open space land program.

To help finance the tax relief income taxes would be increased by 10 per cent. But low and middle income families would be aided by a boost from $50 to $60 in the tax credit for married couples filing a joint return.

The credit for children would be upped from $8 to $15.

But two more brackets in the income tax rate would be added to collect more taxes from high wage earners. The total raised by the increase is estimated at $190 million.

If the sales tax is boosted from 5 cents on the dollar to 5½ cents it would bring in $229 million by the second year.

The total plan would reduce property taxes by about $100 for a person earning $10,000 and owning a $20,000 home. But, after all the other new taxes, his total reduction would be nearer $70.

One large income tax loophole would be narrowed by lowering the capital gains write-off from 50 per cent to 25 per cent. The capital gains reduction would raise $90 million and added to tightening of other gaps the total would be more than $100 million.

THE BUSINESS inventory tax would be decreased by 15 per cent at a cost to the state of $45 million to $50 million. This would be offset by increasing the bank and corporation tax from 7 per cent to 7½ per cent for an increase of $40 million to $50 million.

Oil companies no longer would be able to take a straight 27½ per cent depletion allowance. They would be permitted to deduct only actual operational costs at an estimated gain to the state of $20 million.

The revenue and taxation subcommittee Friday took under submission all tax reform plans including Reagan's and several others proposed by individual members of the legislature.

The program devised by the special panel and presented to the subcommittee included portions of many of the other plans.

But Zenovich said he thought Reagan's plan should receive a hearing by the full revenue and taxation committee along with whatever bill is written by the subcommittee.

"I think the governor's bill must be heard concurrent with this so we can air out all areas of tax reform, tax relief and tax shift," he said.

Interest Hike Try Beaten

By EDITH M. LEDERER

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A proposed 33 per cent hike in price of retail credit virtually evaporated on the Assembly floor Friday in the face of strong opposition from consumer groups and the state attorney general's office.

The proposal would have boosted the permissible top interest rate on retail sales contracts from 18 per cent to 24 per cent — but the increase was quietly amended out of the bill by Assemblyman Walter W. Powers, D-Sacramento.

POWERS, who took over the bill from Assemblyman Bob Moretti, D-Van Nuys, said the amended version followed recommendations of the Finance and Insurance Committee, which heard the measure. "We've made a good bill out of it," he said.

As amended, Powers, said, the bill would only make one change in the Unruh-Retail Installment Credit Act: raise the interest rate on contracts under $1,000 from 10 per cent to 12 per cent.

BY UNANIMOUS consent, the Assembly amendments eliminating several other proposed hikes, and sent the bill out to print. It should be returned to the file early next week for consideration by the full Assembly.

The Association of California Consumers joined the attorney general's office and several other groups in fighting the original proposed increase.

Mrs. Sylvia Siegal, executive director of the consumers association, termed the boost "unconscionable," saying "it makes the poor pay more."

Corvair Absolved

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A Sacramento judge ruled Friday that the design of the 1960-model Corvair had nothing to do with the death four years ago of a 17-year-old girl.

"It is the opinion of the court that no matter what type of vehicle was driven the result would have been substantially the same," Superior Court Judge Gordon D. Schaber said.

Schaber's ruling cleared the Chevrolet division of General Motors of any further liability in the $650,000 wrongful death suit filed by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Neilan of suburban Carmichael.

Yorty Would Find Demo Primary Difficult-Tunney

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Rep. John Tunney, who would like to run for the U.S. Senate, said Friday Los Angeles Mayor Samuel Yorty would have a "difficult" time winning a statewide Democratic primary.

The 34-year-old son of former heavyweight boxing champion Gene Tunney added, "If I were a candidate ... I could beat him."

Yorty has been talked about in political circles as a potential candidate for the senate or governor next year. He recently won re-election to a third term in a come-from-behind victory over Los Angeles councilman Thomas Bradley.

TUNNEY, here on one of his many pre-campaign swings around the state was asked at a news conference how he believes Yorty would fare in a Democratic primary.

"I think he would find it difficult if the opposition were at all strong," the Democratic Congressman said, "mainly because of the fact he has supported Republican candidates in important elections."

In California, Tunney said, "those people who jump the track and support opposition candidates don't fare very well."

Yorty endorsed President Nixon in 1960 when the latter ran the first time, unsuccessfully. He remained neutral last year. In 1966, Yorty declined to support Gov. Edmund G. Brown and showed up at Gov. Ronald Reagan's victory celebration.

Tunney said he still has not formally decided whether to run.

S. I. Hayakawa, acting president of San Francisco State college and another potential statewide candidate next year, "is untested in the political arena," Tunney noted.

$156 Million Refunds

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A fleet of trucks from the Sacramento post office will pick up $156 million at a state office building Thursday and start delivering it around the state.

The money is the bulk of the property tax rebate which voters approved for themselves last November. State Controller Houston

I. Flournoy said Friday the 2,235,000 warrants are ready for mailing.

Flournoy said his office still is receiving a few claims for the $70 rebate. Some claims have been sent back to the counties for double checking, he said. These were the 16,900 cases of duplicate claims the computers discovered.

Campus Crackdowns Failing, Demo Legislators Report

By JAMES BOW
SACRAMENTO (AP) — A group of Democratic Legislators said Friday crackdowns on campus unrest are failing and one Assemblyman added that the "rising military" of the taxpayers may be more dangerous than student activists.

"Many people are saying why don't we shoot the kids, why don't we gas them, why don't we kill them," said Assemblyman Leon Ralph of Los Angeles.

Ralph and seven other assemblymen appeared at a news conference with Assemblyman John Vasconcellos of San Jose, who said he was drawing up an 18-point program to deal with the roots of campus problems.

"THE APPROACH we've been using is a failure," Vasconcellos said. "It's turning conservative students into liberals, turning liberal students into radicals and turning radical students into revolutionaries."

Vasconcellos said, "Though we needn't abandon the failing approach we at least ought to try something else in the form of alternatives."

He proposed a measure this year to include student representatives on the University of California regents and state college board of trustees. He indicated one of his new proposals would involve student participation.

But Assemblyman Willie L. Brown Jr., San Francisco, said maybe legislators and others are talking too much about campus unrest without doing anything worthwhile.

"STUDENT demands on campuses require action without further dialogue," Brown said. He also said the UC Board of Regents should be abolished, rather than just changed, so that students could have full participation.

SDS Claims 'Interference'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Students for a Democratic Society accused the federal government Friday of blocking its attempts to schedule an annual convention.

"We're being banned from every campus in the country," complained Mike Klonsky, a national secretary of the radical organization which spearheaded scores of confrontations in the nation's colleges this school year.

The FBI and Justice Department refused to comment. Two universities gave other reasons for refusing the SDS convention.

It had originally been scheduled to open next Monday, but no site could be found. The opening date was pushed back to June 18. Now even that date looks doubtful, said Klonsky.

"WE HAD been accepted at a lot of schools," Klonsky said, "but as soon as the word got out the federal government stepped in and made them cancel it."

He said at various times the convention had been planned for the University of Chicago, Southern Illinois University, the University of Wisconsin, the University of Buffalo and Cornell University, of Wisconsin, the University of Buffalo and Cornell University.

"They're afraid for us to get together," Klonsky said. "They're afraid of what we have to say."

Klonsky, leader by telephone at SDS national headquarters in Chicago, said 2,000 persons were expected for the convention which, he said, would cap a year in which the organization's membership has doubled.

The SDS, which has become increasingly Marxist and revolutionary in its rhetoric, is believed by authorities to have more than 80,000 members. It claims to have more than 100,000.

KLONSKY said efforts to get a meeting place inside a church also have been futile.

He said a site is needed that would provide the organization with some security. "All we want to do is have a meeting to carry out our business," he said. "Our meetings are very quiet and are run in a business-like fashion."

A spokesman for the University of Wisconsin said SDS members made informal soundings on the possibility of staging the convention at Madison but made no formal application.

He said the administration announced that "it couldn't be worked in because the summer schedule at the university was too heavy."

THE SPOKESMAN said "a few state legislators expressed opinions on this" but that he knew of no contact from the federal level.

UC Gives Student List to Probers

BERKELEY (UPI) — The University of California Friday gave Senate investigators the names of 380 persons in connection with an investigation of campus unrest.

Berkeley Chancellor Roger Heyns issued a statement saying he hoped the Senate permanent subcommittee on investigations, which had subpoenaed the information, would not make public the names.

The list included 208 students and 82 others.

Forty-six of the 380 named were specifically mentioned in the subpoenas issued by the committee. The other names were those of members belonging to 11 campus groups named by the committee.

REAGAN OPPOSITION EXPECTED

New Tax Reform Proposal

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Key legislators Friday unveiled an ambitious $1-billion tax reform plan that leaders of both parties were confident could be worked into an acceptable tax reform bill.

The plan includes $308 million for schools, a reduction of homeowners' property taxes, a break for low income renters and a takeover by the state of county welfare costs.

Funds for the tax relief would be raised by a half-cent increase in the sales tax, closing income tax loopholes which benefit the rich, and hiking the taxes for oil companies, churches, banks and corporations.

The proposal was revealed by William T. Bagley, R-San Anselmo, chairman of the Assembly Revenue and Taxation Committee, during a hearing on various tax reform and revision bills.

Although many assembly leaders disagreed with some aspects of the overall proposal the greatest opposition was anticipated from Gov. Ronald Reagan.

THE PLAN includes withholding of income tax payments — a device Reagan ardently opposes.

The committee will draft a formal bill next week. It is expected to be based on the $1 billion plan devised by a bipartisan panel of six Assemblymen — three Republicans and three Democrats.

The state assumption of all county welfare costs, recommended by the panel, would save the counties $322 million. This is designed to reduce local property taxes.

However, critics of the panel's proposal said the counties probably would not reduce the taxes unless ordered to by the state.

Property tax relief worth $234 million would be provided under the plan by increasing the present $750 homeowners property tax exemption to $1,500 in 1970-71.

The panel's proposal also would:

—Levy a brand new tax on the income from nonreligious businesses owned by churches.

—Provide a tax break for low income renters and senior citizens.

—Provide counties about $5 million in partial compensation for losses under a new state open space land program.

To help finance the tax relief income taxes would be increased by 10 per cent. But low and middle income families would be aided by a boost from $50 to $60 in the tax credit for married couples filing a joint return.

The credit for children would be upped from $8 to $15.

But two more brackets in the income tax rate would be added to collect more taxes from high wage earners. The total raised by the increase is estimated at $190 million.

If the sales tax is boosted from 5 cents on the dollar to 5½ cents it would bring in $229 million by the second year.

The total plan would reduce property taxes by about $100 for a person earning $10,000 and owning a $20,000 home. But, after all the other new taxes, his total reduction would be nearer $70.

One large income tax loophole would be narrowed by lowering the capital gains write-off from 50 per cent to 25 per cent. The capital gains reduction would raise $90 million and added to tightening of other gaps the total would be more than $100 million.

THE BUSINESS inventory tax would be decreased by 15 per cent at a cost to the state of $45 million to $50 million. This would be offset by increasing the bank and corporation tax from 7 per cent to 7½ per cent for an increase of $40 million to $50 million.

Oil companies no longer would be able to take a straight 27½ per cent depletion allowance. They would be permitted to deduct only actual operational costs at an estimated gain to the state of $20 million.

The revenue and taxation subcommittee Friday took under submission all tax reform plans including Reagan's and several others proposed by individual members of the legislature.

The program devised by the special panel and presented to the subcommittee included portions of many of the other plans.

But Zenovich said he thought Reagan's plan should receive a hearing by the full revenue and taxation committee along with whatever bill is written by the subcommittee.

"I think the governor's bill must be heard concurrent with this so we can air out all areas of tax reform, tax relief and tax shift," he said.

Interest Hike Try Beaten

By EDITH M. LEDERER

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A proposed 33 per cent hike in price of retail credit virtually evaporated on the Assembly floor Friday in the face of strong opposition from consumer groups and the state attorney general's office.

The proposal would have boosted the permissible top interest rate on retail sales contracts from 18 per cent to 24 per cent — but the increase was quietly amended out of the bill by Assemblyman Walter W. Powers, D-Sacramento.

POWERS, who took over the bill from Assemblyman Bob Moretti, D-Van Nuys, said the amended version followed recommendations of the Finance and Insurance Committee, which heard the measure. "We've made a good hill out of it," he said.

As amended, Powers said, the bill would only make one change in the Unruh Retail Installment Credit Act: raise the interest rate on contracts under $1,000 from 10 per cent to 12 per cent.

BY UNANIMOUS consent, the Assembly amendments eliminating several other proposed hikes, and sent the bill out to print. It should be returned to the file early next week for consideration by the full Assembly.

The Association of California Consumers joined the attorney general's office and several other groups in fighting the original proposed increase.

Mrs. Sylvia Siegal, executive director of the consumers association, termed the boost "unconscionable," saying "it makes the poor pay more."

Corvair Absolved

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A Sacramento judge ruled Friday that the design of the 1960-model Corvair had nothing to do with the death four years ago of a 17-year-old girl.

"It is the opinion of the court that no matter what type of vehicle was being driven the result would have been substantially the same," Superior Court Judge Gordon D. Schaber said.

Schaber's ruling cleared the Chevrolet division of General Motors of any further liability in the $850,000 wrongful death suit filed by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Neilan of suburban Carmichael.

Yorty Would Find Demo Primary Difficult-Tunney

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Rep. John Tunney, who would like to run for the U.S. Senate, said Friday Los Angeles Mayor Samuel Yorty would have a "difficult" time winning a statewide Democratic primary.

The 34-year-old son of former heavyweight boxing champion Gene Tunney added, "If I were a candidate ... I could beat him."

Yorty has been talked about in political circles as a potential candidate for the senate or governor next year. He recently won re-election to a third term in a come-from-behind victory over Los Angeles councilman Thomas Bradley.

TUNNEY, here on one of his many pre-campaign swings around the state was asked at a news conference how he believes Yorty would fare in a Democratic primary.

"I think he would find it difficult if the opposition were at all strong," the Democratic Congressman said, "mainly because

Cranston Asks Housing Funds

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., said Friday the nation's critical housing needs can be easily solved by the building industry if funds currently available are released by the federal government.

Speaking at the Pacific Coast Builders Conference, Cranston warned that "we must not allow our concern with inflation to sabotage our aim of providing decent housing for every American. The surest way to heat up our cities is to cool down the economy by cutting back on housing."

of the fact he has supported Republican candidates in important elections."

In California, Tunney said, "those people who jump the track and support opposition candidates don't fare very well."

Yorty endorsed President Nixon in 1960 when the latter ran the first time, unsuccessfully. He remained neutral last year. In 1966, Yorty declined to support Gov. Edmund G. Brown and showed up at Gov. Ronald Reagan's victory celebration.

BUT IF YORTY could get past a democratic primary, Tunney said, he "would be a formidable opponent" against Republican U.S. Sen. George Murphy. He said Reagan now appears "unbeatable."

S. I. Hayakawa, acting president of San Francisco State college and another potential statewide candidate next year, "is untested in the political arena," Tunney noted.

Tunney said he still has not formally decided whether to run.

$156 Million Refunds

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A fleet of trucks from the Sacramento post office will pick up $156 million at a state office building Thursday and start delivering it around the state.

The money is the bulk of the property tax rebate which voters approved for themselves last November. State Controller Houston

I. Flournoy said Friday the 2,235,000 warrants are ready for mailing.

Flournoy said his office still is receiving a few claims for the $70 rebate. Some claims have been sent back to the counties for double checking, he said. These were the 16,000 cases of duplicate claims the computers discovered.

Campus Crackdowns Failing, Demo Legislators Report

By JAMES BOW
SACRAMENTO (AP) — A group of Democratic Legislators said Friday crackdowns on campus unrest are failing and one Assemblyman added that the "rising military" of the taxpayers may be more dangerous than student activists.

"Many people are saying why don't we shoot the kids, why don't we gas them, why don't we kill them," said Assemblyman Leon Ralph of Los Angeles.

Ralph and seven other assemblymen appeared at a news conference with Assemblyman John Vasconcellos of San Jose, who said, he was drawing up an 18-point program to deal with the roots of campus problems.

"THE APPROACH we've been using is a failure," Vasconcellos said. "It's turning conservative students into liberals, turning liberal students into radicals and turning radical students into revolutionaries."

Vasconcellos said, "Though we needn't abandon the failing approach we at least ought to try something else in the form of alternatives."

He proposed a measure this year to include student representatives on the University of California regents and state college board of trustees. He indicated one of his new proposals would involve student participation.

But Assemblyman Willie L. Brown Jr., San Francisco, said maybe legislators and others are talking too much about campus unrest without doing anything worthwhile.

"STUDENT demands on campuses require action without further dialogue," Brown said. He also said the UC Board of Regents should be abolished, rather than just changed, so that students could have full participation.

UC Gives Student List to Probers

SDS Claims 'Interference'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Students for a Democratic Society accused the federal government Friday of blocking its attempts to schedule an annual convention.

AT ARTESIA FREEWAY DEDICATION Phillips Earns 'Snip' Title

Supervisor William J. Phillips of Orange County was declared first place ribbon-cutter and Supervisor Frank G. Bonelli the "champ" when the Los Angeles-Orange County link of Artesia Freeway (Route 91) was dedicated Friday at the Coyote Creek overpass.

Judges' were beauty queens representing 13 cities taking part in a ceremony sponsored by the Orange County Chamber of Commerce and civic groups from Buena Park, La Palma and Cerritos, the State Division of Highways and the Automobile Club of Southern California.

The newly completed slice of Route 91 extends from Artesia Boulevard near Bloomfield Avenue in Buena Park. It is expected the new four-mile link will be open to traffic next week. The freeway addition was constructed under two contracts totaling $8.8 million.

To the west, Artesia Freeway is now open to Lakewood Boulevard in Bellflower. The freeway will be completed to Atlantic Avenue in Long Beach late in 1970, and to a junction with the Long Beach Freeway in mid-1971. East from Beach Boulevard, the connection of the route with the Santa Ana and Riverside Freeways will be opened early next summer.

Shipowners, Four Unions Schedule Meetings to Head Off Port Strike

By CHARLES SUTTON
Staff Writer

New meetings with West Coast seafaring unions will be held next week by the Pacific Maritime Association in efforts to head off a possible strike against American flag ships later this month.

The West Coast shipowners representative, following the lead of East and Gulf coast shipping lines, has already held a number of meetings with the Seafarers International Union and the Masters, Mates and Pilots Union, and has additional meetings planned. The PMA also has tentatively scheduled meetings with the Marine Engineers Beneficial Association and the American Radio Association.

The four unions represent the bulk of organized labor of American flag-ships on the Pacific Coast. Their contracts expire June 15, but in the case of the Seafarers International Union the talks are expected to proceed beyond that date while progress is being made.

Although there is no agreement with the other three unions to extend negotiations past the expiration date, neither is there talk of an imminent strike at this time.

For a time last month, the threat of a strike hung over the East and Gulf coasts, but a settlement this week with three of four unions appears to have lifted a good deal of the gloom.

According to the Wall Street Journal, the three unions signed a tentative agreement calling for a 33 per cent hike in wages and benefits. The Masters, Mates union is holding out for more money, however, in an effort to eliminate what it describes as "ine-

Forecast for Sunday

Your birthday today. You're off to a lively start. Nothing is static this coming year, least on all your habits and views. Since you may change and grow, you should definitely seek the positive changes within your reach. Active and romantic urges find generous fulfillment with normal effort. Today's natives tend to be optimistic, give to mental postures, and usually caustic in opinions.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Today everything at a great distance is somehow becoming, mystical. News from far-away places may have a special exhilaration that carries on into the future.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Attend your regular Sunday routines, open to social activities. This evening, there should be plenty to talk about, much good news of group projects, if you drive, avoid heavy traffic, and be careful.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): The best laid plans tend to be sidetracked today. Surprise visits, ideas lead to a scramble. Equipment, appliances, vehicles will not be particularly when you act abruptly.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your finances are subject to a sharp reaction today, up or down, depending on what you have been doing and how things are. Sudden expenses may occur. Shop judiciously are exceptionally risky now.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Observe your regular Sunday customs with ease and dignity. Pursue social and romantic interests in balmy spirits. A long and lucky day.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Relax and drift along with the social tides. It is a moment for expanding your personal boundaries with no particular project to achieve.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Carry your share of the community's public life today. Be available for news from far places, long-standing connections.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Think about all the things you can do this Sunday, make a list, and go out and do as many of them as there is daylight to go by.

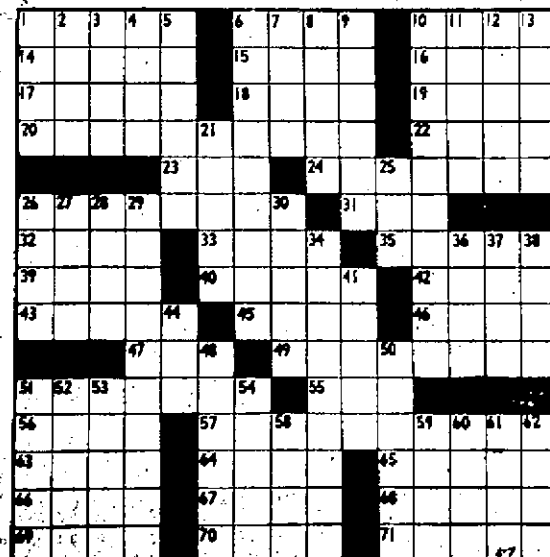

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Community and public life can be stimulating. Stay with friends and neighbors, keep up with last-breaking news, the evening promises interesting social, perhaps romantic, conquests.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Distant affairs, people continue to be the center of attention. Do your share of the community's public functions. There may be important communications from relatives tonight.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Savings, reserve funds, legal obligations come to your attention today. Attend to the customs of a list, and go out and do as many of them as there is daylight to go by.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): This Sunday is an ideal one for you to (liberally) through, doing the simple, enjoyable, social things and facing nothing seriously.

Forecast for Sunday

Your birthday today: You're off before you realize it on a lively adventure. Nothing is static this coming year, least of all your habits and views. Since you must change and grow, you should definitely seek the positive changes within your reach. Creative and romantic urges find generous fulfillment with normal friends. Today's natives tend to be optimistic, given to mental pastimes, and usually caustic in opinions.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Today everything at a great distance is somehow appealing, mystical. News from far-away places may have a special exhilaration that carries on into the future.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Attend your regular Sunday routines, go on to social activities this evening. There should be plenty to talk about, much good news of group projects. If you drive, avoid heavy traffic, and be careful.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): The best laid plans tend to be sidetracked today. Surprise visits, ideas lead to a scramble. Equipment, appliances, vehicles all tend to balk particularly when you act abruptly.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your finances are subject to a sharp reaction today, up or down, depending on what you have been doing and how shrewd you are. Sudden expenses may occur. Sino lubricants are exceptionally risky now.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Observe your regular Sunday customs with ease and dignity. Pursue social and romantic interests in blithe spirits. A long and lucky day.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Relax and drift along with the social life. It is a moment for expanding your personal boundaries with no particular project to achieve.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Carry your share of the community's public life today. Be available for news from far places, long-standing connections.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Think about all the things you can do this Sunday, make a list, and go out and do as many of them as there is daylight to go by.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Community and public life can be stimulating. Stay with friends and neighbors, keep up with last-breaking news. The evening brings interesting social and romantic conquests.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Dis- tant affairs, people continue to be the center of attention. Do your share of the community's public functions. There may be important communications from relatives tonight.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Savings, reserve funds, legal obligations come to your attention today. Attend to the questions of the day gradually before referring to seriously consider these matters.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): This Sunday is an ideal one for you to float through, doing the simple, enjoyable, social things and taking nothing seriously.

Beautiful, Wacky Girls Make Hollywood Fun

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — One of the advantages of living in Hollywood is the plethora of beautiful girls. Another is that a goodly proportion of same are delightfully wacky.
Barbara Werle is a sample.
SHE IS THE feminine lead in "Kakatoa, East of Java," the title of which throws her into something of a tizzy.
"I looked it up on the map," said the shapely blonde, "and it turns out that Kakatoa is really west of Java. Can you imagine the cinema people making a mistake like that?"
"I think they found out about it too late, the title song was already recorded and they didn't want to go through the expense."
"Anyhow, East of Java sounds more mysterious and oriental than West of Java. I mean there's nothing mysterious about west. It could even be west Los Angeles, you know?"
Clearly Barbara talks while she thinks. Sometimes she gets ahead of herself, but that bothers her not at all.
"We did go east to make 'Kakatoa,'" she said. "We went all the way to Spain and spent five months there making the picture. But we didn't pass Java and we didn't collect $200. You know, like in that game, Monopoly."
"To tell you the truth we didn't even see Java."
BARBARA looked around the Brown Derby suspiciously and added, "We never even got to Krakatoa."
"It blew up in 1883 so it isn't there anymore. But somebody told me that a new island has formed next to it and they call it Arak Krakatoa which means son of Krakatoa. Maybe we will make a sequel to this picture and call it 'Son of Krakatoa.' Those things happen out here."
Barbara said she had received mixed reviews.
"They called me frilly, not too smart, not too talented or too virtuous," she confessed. "Most of them weren't too kind about my singing voice either."
"I was doing the best I could. But there went five years of singing lessons right down the drain."
"But that doesn't discourage me," Barbara babbled on. "The next picture I'm going to do is a musical."
"One critic described me as a derelict and I had to look that up. I always thought a derelict was a drunken bum who needed a shave. I couldn't imagine why they called me that because I never shave."
"EVEN THE dictionary didn't define derelict very clearly. But what do dictionary writers know — you can't find any reviews of 'Kakatoa' in those books."
"People misunderstand my acting. When I finished a very serious dramatic picture — 'Man Without Mercy' — the director, Barney Gerard, told me I should do more comedy."
"That doesn't bother me either. Can I help it if I play a part one way and other people see it another way?"
Barbara's press agent stopped eating his lunch. He didn't look well.

Singer Tommy Roe Due at Disneyland Tonight

Pop singer Tommy Roe will be one of the stellar attractions tonight as Disneyland stages its first presummer "date nite" from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m.

Also scheduled for the event will be Disneyland's The Sound Castle, a rock music group, at the Plaza Gardens, and the Fire House Five PLUS Two, playing at the French Market.

THE "DATE NITE" follows Friday's first high school students' graduation party at the Orange County amusement center. In all, more than 100,000 high school students from 31 California counties will celebrate graduation in seven all-night parties at Disneyland.

The high school graduation parties will include music and dancing to name bands and recording stars, plus the park's attractions. The graduation parties are from 11 p.m. to 5 a.m.

Besides tonight's "date nite," two others are scheduled on Saturday, June 14, and Saturday, June 21. Saturday hours are from 9 a.m. to 1 a.m.

Also scheduled for the "date nites" are the "Golden Horseshoe Revue," a comedy-musical offering, the Young Tahiti-ans at the Tahitian Terrace, and until 10 p.m., the Banjo Kings aboard the "Mark Twain."

DURING next week, the park will be open from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. Sunday through Friday.

For the special high school graduation parties, entertainment includes a Tomorrowland stage show starring The Righteous

2 Recitals Offer Study in Contrasts

By DANIEL CARIAGA Music Critic

June is usually the least busy of the year's twelve months for this listener. And this June's aspect does not contradict the rule. But the few events this light month contains seem to be genuinely interesting.

The week's end, for instance, brought two promising piano recitals, one in an unfamiliar Long Beach auditorium, the other in an also unfamiliar hall in nearby Artesia. Moreover, the performers offered not only a curious generation gap — the first a renowned pedagogue of 69 summers, the second a former prodigy now all of 17 — but also a study in pianistic contrasts.

A REPORT of Mariblanca de Pujada's all-Chopin program at Cerritos College last night will have to wait until Monday; in the meantime, let me tell you about Reginald Stewart's public recital at the Institute of Lifetime Learning Thursday.

Now, a Thursday matinee may not be the oddest concert time in our experience, but it is sufficiently rare to cause comment. And to discourage at least some listeners from attending.

Nonetheless, a full house — including, strangely, not a single soul of my acquaintance — filled the Institute's boxy downtown auditorium for this program of Chopin, Beethoven, Bartok, and Anton Rubinstein.

Sorry to say, I had not heard Stewart, who was formerly director (1941-58) of the Peabody Conservatory, and is now a teacher at the Music Academy of the West, before. If his present performance is representative — and one can never guess about these things — he is, and was, a fluent, musicianly, altogether admirable pianist.

His Chopin group, which comprised his first half, may have lacked the spontaneity and brio of the ideal interpreter of that composer, but there can be many pleasures in the sculptured, more cautious approach.

The sampling, in any case, beginning with a post-humous Nocturne in C-sharp minor, and ending with the A-flat Ballade, was healthy and intrinsically. Among other pieces, one admired particularly the directness and wholeheartedness of the A-flat Impromptu, and similar features in the F major Nocturne. We missed only the relaxation of a Waltz — any Waltz.

THE C MAJOR Sonata of Beethoven's Opus 2 is so rarely played on artists' programs, we should be grateful for Stewart's reading. And we are.

It was balance, understated, (as befits its birthdate), and clean. Unfortunately, the youthful good humor of the concluding movements never came through. And a failure to project corresponding ebulliences in Bartok's Rumanian Dances and Rubinstein's "Staccato" Etude must be noted, too.

60 Blind Teens to Tour Oil Isle

Sixty blind teenagers and young adults from the Braille Institute will tour the Oil Islands off the coast of Long Beach next Saturday.

The group will depart from the Reef Restaurant, 1200 Harbor Scenic Drive, at 10 a.m. by boat to Islands A and B.

Beautiful, Wacky Girls Make Hollywood Fun

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — One of the advantages of living in Hollywood is the plethora of beautiful girls. Another is that a goodly proportion of same are delightfully wacky.

Barbara Werle is a sample.

SHE IS THE feminine lead in "Krakatoa, East of Java," the title of which throws her into something of a tizzy.

"I looked it up on the map," said the shapely blonde, "and it turns out that Krakatoa is really west of Java. Can you imagine the cinema people making a mistake like that?"

"I think they found out about it too late, the title song was already recorded and they didn't want to go through the expense."

"Anyhow, East of Java sounds more mysterious and oriental than West of Java. I mean there's nothing mysterious about west. It could even be west Los Angeles, you know?"

Clearly Barbara talks while she thinks. Sometimes she gets ahead of herself, but that bothers her not at all.

"We did go east to make 'Krakatoa,'" she said. "We went all the way to Spain and spent five months there making the picture. But we didn't pass Java and we didn't collect $200. You know, like in that game, Monopoly."

"To tell you the truth we didn't even see Java."

BARBARA looked around the Brown Derby suspiciously and added, "We never even got to Krakatoa."

"It blew up in 1883 so it isn't there anymore. But somebody told me that a new island has formed next to it and they call it Arak Krakatoa which means son of Krakatoa. Maybe we will make a sequel to this picture and call it 'Son of Krakatoa.' Those things happen out here."

Barbara said she had received mixed reviews.

"They called me frilly, not too smart, not too talented or too virtuous," she confessed. "Most of them weren't too kind about my singing voice either."

"I was doing the best I could. But there went five years of singing lessons right down the drain."

"But that doesn't discourage me," Barbara babbled on. "The next picture I'm going to do is a musical."

"One critic described me as a derelict and I had to look that up. I always thought a derelict was a drunken bum who needed a shave. I couldn't imagine why they called me that because I never shave."

"EVEN THE dictionary didn't define derelict very clearly. But what do dictionary writers know — you can't find any reviews of 'Krakatoa' in those books."

"People misunderstand my acting. When I finished a very serious dramatic picture — 'Man Without Mercy' — the director, Barney Gerard, told me I should do more comedy."

"That doesn't bother me either. Can I help it if I play a part one way and other people see it another way?"

Barbara's press agent stopped eating his lunch. He didn't look well.

ADMIRABLE EQUIPMENT

Singer Tommy Roe Due at Disneyland Tonight

Pop singer Tommy Roe will be one of the stellar attractions tonight as Disneyland stages its first presummer "date nite" from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m.

Also scheduled for the event will be Disneyland's The Sound Castle, a rock music group, at the Plaza Gardens, and the Fire House Five PLUS Two, playing at the French Market.

THE "DATE NITE" follows Friday's first high school students' graduation party at the Orange County amusement center. In all, more than 100,000 high school students from 31 California counties will celebrate graduation in seven all-night parties at Disneyland.

The high school graduation parties will include music and dancing to name bands and recording stars, plus the park's attractions. The graduation parties are from 11 p.m. to 5 a.m.

Besides tonight's "date nite," two others are scheduled on Saturday, June 14, and Saturday, June 21. Saturday hours are from 9 a.m. to 1 a.m.

Also scheduled for the "date nites" are the "Golden Horseshoe Revue," a comedy-musical offering, the Young Tahiti-ans at the Tahitian Terrace, and until 10 p.m., the Banjo Kings aboard the "Mark Twain."

DURING next week, the park will be open from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. Sunday through Friday.

For the special high school graduation parties, entertainment includes a Tomorrowland stage show starring The Righteous

2 Recitals Offer Study in Contrasts

By DANIEL CARIAGA Music Critic

June is usually the least busy of the year's twelve months for this listener. And this June's aspect does not contradict the rule. But the few events this light month contains seem to be genuinely interesting.

The week's end, for instance, brought two promising piano recitals, one in an unfamiliar Long Beach auditorium, the other in a nearby Artesia. Moreover, the performers offered not only a curious generation gap — the first a renowned pedagogue of 69 summers, the second a former prodigy now all of 17 — but also a study in pianistic contrasts.

A REPORT of Mariblanca de Pujada's all-Chopin program at Cerritos College last night will have to wait until Monday; in Sixty blind teen-agers and young adults from the Braille Institute will tour the Oil Islands off the coast of Long Beach next Saturday.

Joe Gone Today, Back Tomorrow?

Combined News Services

Joe Namath quit football Friday over a charge of gambling in his club, but few were wagering that he would remain retired.

Asked if his differences with professional football commissioner Pete Rozelle could be resolved, Namath said, "I hope so. The last thing I want to do is quit football."

Rozelle remarked, "I would like to see Joe Namath play pro football very much. He knows what my problem is, and I know what his is. I have no appointment with him, but I will be happy to talk with him."

Broadway Joe, 26-year-old quarterback of the world champion New York Jets, had been warned by Rozelle to sell his one-third interest in the New York restaurant-lounge called Bachelors III.

The commissioner's objection to the establishment was based upon its customers, some of whom were believed to be gamblers performing bookmaking services on the premises.

The New York Post quoted a high police official as saying, "The place was crawling with the worst sort of characters. We had men in there, and there were all sorts of things going on downstairs where a bank of pay telephones was used by customers. It was a case of Namath not knowing what was going on down there, but it was pretty bad."

Undercover agents had amassed "enough evidence to close 10 places," the Post quoted another police source. "A raid could have come at any time. It was probably close," the police source said.

At a press conference, Namath told reporters, "Thursday night I was going to sell my share of the club. It was logical, but it wasn't right, and I couldn't go through with it."

Sitting under hot television lights, Namath said, "I'm not selling, I'm quitting." Tears rolled down his face.

Namath said he had been given pictures of five persons, supposedly gamblers, by Rozelle. He said he was able to identify three of them "as people who come into my place. I see people who come in and I say 'hello' to them."

"Look, what is all this about gambling? My father gambled. Sonny Werblin (Namath's adviser and former president of the Jets) told me that he had bet on the Super Bowl. Does that mean that I should not associate with him? I haven't done anything wrong."

Three other Jets, tight end Pete Lammons, split end George Sauer and safety Jim Hudson, said Friday that if Namath retires, they will retire.

"I'd rather dig ditches," said Sauer. "I don't like the stigma attached to all this. And I'd feel like a rookie breaking in with a new quarterback."

"If Pete Rozelle gives Joe an ultimatum like that, he's got to give one to me. I'm no different. I know gamblers — everyone does," said Hudson.

If Namath does remain retired, he won't starve.

He was recently presented a check for $2 million to start a string of Broadway Joe's snack bars. He will act in a Paramount movie next month. His Bachelors III charges $1.30 for a drink.

RAMOS BREAKS HAND IN DRILL

World lightweight champion Mando Ramos broke his hand in training Friday and his title defense against Japan's Yoshiaki Numata June 14 is off.

The mishap occurred at the training camp of the 20-year-old Long Beach champion in Santa Ana. Aileen Eaton of the Olympic Boxing Club, who is promoting the triple-main event card in the Coliseum, said the show will go on as planned but a new opponent will be selected to face Numata, the former Oriental lightweight champion.

The winner, said Mrs. Eaton, will get a crack at Ramos' title this summer.

Welterweights Ernie (Indian Red) Lopez and Helgeon Lewis meet as scheduled in one 10-rounder, and Alacran Torres of Guadalajara, Mex., will box Susumu Hanagata of Tokyo in another 10. Torres is the world flyweight champion, but his title is not at stake.

Numata and his yet-to-be selected opponent will fight 10 rounds.

This was to have been the first title defense for the popular Ramos.

Will Prince Emerge as King Today?

By MARTIN KIVEL
Special Correspondent

BELMONT PARK, N.Y.

Unbeaten Majestic Prince, one of the most exciting race horses of modern times, will try to make the "impossible dream" a reality today when he faces five rivals in the gruelling mile and one-half Belmont Stakes.

A victory would make him the first unbeaten Triple Crown winner and only the ninth to garner racing's most coveted prize.

CBS (2) will telecast the race, at 2 p.m.

Of the five rivals who will try to stop the red prince of the West from writing a new chapter in turf history, only two appear to have a chance of turning the "dream" into a nightmare. They are Dike and arch rival Arts and Letters, Majestic Prince's shadow in the Kentucky Derby and Preakness.

The best you can say for the other three is that they all have manes and tails. Any other similarity seems lacking.

Sentimentally and at the windows, the crowd at Belmont today is expected to make Majestic Prince an overwhelming favorite.

The early line has the Prince at 6-5; Arts and Letters 8-5; Dike 2-1; Rooney's Shield 20-1; Disty 20-1 and Prime Fool 30-1.

Both owner Frank McMahon and trainer Johnny Longden are confident that their brilliant star will be in the winner's circle when the race is over. Longden says, "He's as fit as a horse can be. They aren't going to beat him, you can take my word for it."

McMahon is equally confident. He has even gone so far as to announce a win-or-lose party after the races Saturday.

Strategy should be the big thing in the mile-and-one-half grind which offers no excuses to the losers. There is no early pace in the race unless Majestic Prince and Arts and Letters choose to make it come up that way. Both have a high turn of speed but will want to save it for the end when it counts.

In the draw for post positions, Majestic Prince drew No. 3 with Arts and Letters in 1 and Dike in 5. The others are Prime Fool in 2, Rooney's Shield in 4 and Disty in 6.

Hardwick Wins Bowling Prize

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. — Billy Hardwick of Louisville, Ky., defeated Jim Stefanich of Joliet, Ill., 289-192 to win the $6,000 first prize Friday in the Professional Bowler's Assn.'s $70,000 Smalcomb Classic.

It was the 27-year-old Hardwick's fourth championship this year and raised his leading money-winning figure to $41,725.

Laycoe Kings Coach

By RICH ROBERTS
Staff Writer

Opportunity knocked twice for Hal Laycoe, who was finally ready to come out of the woods.

"I could have come to Los Angeles two years ago," Laycoe said Friday when Jack Kent Cooke introduced him as the new coach of the Kings, "and I often regretted that I didn't."

Before Cooke hired Red Kelly two years ago, he tried to hire Laycoe, who has had a long and successful minor league coaching career, the last nine at Portland in the north woods of the Western Hockey League.

Laycoe turned him down.

"My boys were still in college and I might have been doubtful about expansion," he said. "It just didn't seem like the time."

Cooke said Laycoe's two-year contract might make him "the highest paid coach in the National Hockey League," but Laycoe denies that alone influenced his change of heart.

"I'd hate to feel that I took it just for the money," he said. "I know it's been said before, but this is a challenge."

It was suggested that his biggest challenge might be getting along with general manager Larry Regan, whose conflicts with Kelly created a split.

"I've spent time with Larry," Laycoe said, "and I'd be disappointed if we didn't have anything but harmony. Everything has

Angels Tripped by Tribe

By GORDON VERRELL
Staff Writer

CLEVELAND — It hasn't been a joy ride for Ken (Hawk) Harrelson since he ended his celebrated retirement and decided to play for the Indians.

Since the trade that brought the Hawk to Cleveland from Boston, where he led the American League in runs batted in last year, he's been booed by the fans and abused in the press.

He was grumbling before Friday night's game with the Angels. Jim Fregosi, the Halos' shortstop, approached Harrelson at the batting cage and asked, "Hey Ken, how's it going?"

"Lousy," was the reply. He was still grumbling after the game, an 8-3 victory for Cleveland in which Harrelson hammered his sixth home run and Tony Horton slugged Nos. 9 and 10.

Only Harrelson wasn't upset about his batting average, only .192, as much as he was the retirement of one of his chums, Joe Namath, of the New York Jets.

"Isn't that something?" he began. "I admire Pete Rozelle (the pro football commissioner) and all that. But to make a guy sell his business, well, that's all wrong."

Rozelle, you may have read, instructed Namath to rid himself of his ties with a New York nightclub because a number of undesirable, notably gamblers, frequented the place.

"Heck, I know the athletes," Harrelson went on as he slipped into one of his mod outfits, a blue pinstripe with bellbottom slacks, light blue turtle-neck, the works.

"I know these players. And just because three or four of those gamblers go in there, that doesn't mean Joe is placing bets or gambling or even talking to them. Man, to make him sell that club, that's just not right."

The Hawk has a number of businesses of his own.

'Little Olympics' at Coliseum Tonight

By JOHN DIXON
Staff Writer

Happy to be running at sea level, even if it is a little smoggy, 40 survivors of the 1968 Mexico City Olympiad will be aiming at gold medals in the annual Compton Invitational tonight.

The 24-event Coliseum carnival commences at 6 p.m. with the hammer throw. The races will begin at 7:30 p.m. with the 100-yard dash.

Off his world record time of 3:51.1, Jim Ryun should win the four-lapper with one good leg.

But he's had only one good leg this semester, and his quickest 1969 clocking of 4:07.8 doesn't even qualify him to perch in the starting blocks.

But he'll be there, and somehow will be favored to outgallop Olympian Marty Liquori (4:00.8) of Villanova, Sam Bair (3:58.4), Chuck LaBenz (3:58.4) of Arizona State, and John Lawson (3:59.5) of the Pacific Coast Club, Long Beach.

This may be Ryun's farewell to the Invitational. In his hello, as a high school junior in 1964, he

IF HORSES COULD TALK

Stirring Duels Expected in Inglewood 'Cap'

William Haggin Perry's strong entry of Gamely and Dewan head a field of nine older horses entered in the $50,000-added Inglewood Handicap at Hollywood Park today.

The 1 1/2 mile feature boasts at least two built-in rivalries.

Gamely won the Inglewood last year in a close decision over Rising Market, and the son of To Market will attempt to reverse matters.

Dewan lost to Poleax in the 1968 Hollywood Derby, and Poleax also is entered today.

Indulto, a two-time stakes winner at the meeting, poses another threat. Rounding out the entries are Rivel, Quiche, Gene's Dancer and Glory Hallelujah.

Rising Market, who has run four big races but failed to win at the meeting, carries high weight of 120 pounds, with Laffit Pincay, Jr., the rider.

The 5-year-old Gamely, only mare in the lineup and seeking her second stakes win of the season, goes with 117, including her rider of a year ago, Wayne Harris.

Indulto, piloted by Jerry Lambert, and Poleax, winner of the Oakland Handicap at Golden Gate Fields Memorial Day, each carry 119. Don Pierce is Poleax' rider.

Dewan, lightly weighted at 114, will have Alvaro Pineda, the leading jockey at the meeting.

Most of the horses are likely contenders in the Hollywood Gold Cup Handicap July 12, which will be worth $102,100 to the winner.

With apprentice Rudy Rosales applying the finishing touches to a work of art started by Alvaro Pineda, it was "Ole for the Latin reimsen in the Hollywood riding colony Friday.

IF HORSES COULD TALK

Stirring Duels Expected in Inglewood 'Cap

William Haggin Perry's strong entry of Gamely and Dewan head a field of nine older horses entered in the $50,000-added Inglewood Handicap at Hollywood Park today.

The 1 1/2 mile feature boasts at least two built-in rivalries.

Gamely won the Inglewood last year in a nose decision over Rising Market, and the son of To Market will attempt to reverse matters.

Dewan lost to Poleax in the 1968 Hollywood Derby, and Poleax also is entered today.

Indulto, a two-time stakes winner at the meeting, poses another threat. Rounding out the entries are Rivel, Quiche, Gene's Dancer and Glory Hallelujah.

Rising Market, who has run four big races but failed to win at the meeting, carries high weight of 120 pounds, with Laffit Pincay, Jr., the rider.

The 5-year-old Gamely, only mare in the lineup and seeking her second stakes win of the season, goes with 117, including unhurried while tackling from the top stretch, cut between horses without incident, and won easily. GALLANT POLICY raced along the rail on the outside, but could not catch the leader. MAY-GOODRICH raced close up, rallied and battle in the hard fought late stages. No scratches.

PROPHETIC CHURCH LEADER DIES

A Mighty Congregationalist Was Dr. Truman Douglass

By LES RODNEY

The word "controversial" usually went along with mention of his name in print.

Considering the alternative — "non controversial" — chances are it's not a word that would be rejected as his epitaph by Rev. Dr. Truman B. Douglass, an American churchman of some importance who died suddenly this week of age 67.

His many friends and associates over the years might prefer the more biblical word "prophetic" for Douglass.

There's little point in listing all the positions he held, both within his own denomination, the United Church of Christ, and in the National Council of Churches. Except perhaps to just mention that most recently he was homeland ministries leader of the UCC, and was the current chairman of the Council's Division of Christian Life and Mission. Positions don't necessarily tell the extent of a man's caliber.

MORE TO the point is the fact that way back in 1937, while he was a pastor in a St. Louis Congregational church, he made the before-its-time suggestion of a union between his denomination and the Evangelical and Reformed Church. (Congregationalists were the Pilgrims and Puritans of Massachusetts Bay. The E and R church, of Germanic origin, began in Pennsylvania in the early 1700s.)

Twenty years later the two united to form the United Church of Christ, first union of church bodies of dissimilar national backgrounds and different methods of government, thus a most significant possible harbinger of things to come.

In 1948 Dr. Douglass created a stir with an article in Woman's Home Companion, "Let's Unite Our Churches Now!" calling for formation of a single Protestant church, an idea considerably more than 20 years too early, (If ever.)

The way he felt about unity might best be summed up in this bit from his talk to the uniting convention of the UCC in '57: "Denominations operate independently on the dubious assumption that people care about distinctions in creeds and church practices when churches are faced with issues of such staggering dimensions that no single church body can hope to solve them alone."

HE WAS, naturally, a leading spokesman for the ongoing though lagging attempt to unite 10 Protestant denominations (COCU), but when he got impatient with the bureaucratic deliberations, he switched to a more practical program, innovating the immediate union of home missionary agencies, and other cooperative working and educational programs.

Under his leadership the UCC board for Homeland Ministries adopted a policy that it would not undertake any new work alone if other Protestant missionary agencies, or even Roman Catholic or Jewish organizations, were willing to cooperate.

One of his many keen interests was mass communication, where he felt Christianity was missing the boat. "The problem of communication," he said, "in its modern setting, is one which the Church dare not evade. To be indifferent to it on alleged theological grounds is to detach theology from the Evangel."

In 1945 he helped found the Joint Religious Radio Committee which joined the five denominations in the first cooperative broadcasting enterprise, and was its first chairman. He was first president of the more broadly based Protestant Radio Commission and, with the founding of the National Council of Churches in 1950, became first chairman of its Broadcasting and Film Commission.

He was impatient both with church leaders who were slow to understand the significance of mass communications, and with those who saw it as an opportunity to publicize themselves or their denominations.

"They are much more concerned with employing the communications media to give a few ecclesiastical big wheels a chance to bask in the klieg lights than they are eager to use them in publishing the good news of the Gospel," he said with characteristic bluntness at a conference on communication.

As any real Christian must be, he was an ardent, knowledgeable conservationist, who fiercely hated what selfish shortsightedness was doing to "God's country." He was an unashamed "dove" on Vietnam well before it became fashionable. He ever separated his faith from the world about him. Not too long before his death he wrote: "We see the task of the church as not so much to 'claim for Christ' the kingdoms of this world (over which He is already Lord), nor to 'carry Christ' into darkened areas of society (from which He has never been absent), as to recognize His creative and redemptive presence and activity in the history of our time and to find ways of participating in what He is doing."

IN 1964, he sparked a landmark legal victory in

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals which assured the public's right to intervene when broadcasting station licenses are issued or renewed. The United Church combatted renewal of the license of a station in Jackson, Miss. because of what it called racist practices, and also successfully petitioned the FCC to issue a rule forbidding broadcasting stations to discriminate.

Dr. Douglass, who was largely responsible for the National Council establishing its Commission on Religious and Race, believed the key issue for the solution of the nation's racial crisis to be whether the American people are willing to tax themselves to the extent necessary for all to enjoy "the American way of life."

He insisted upon candor on the part of the church in its relations with the public. He saw to it that unpleasant facts about the United Church, such as its degree of racial prejudice, were published.

"I would suggest that in some instances of dealing with controversy there is no substitute for a direct frontal attack," he said. "You walk up to an issue, look it over, and then spit in its eye."

It was probably his passionate feelings about neglected people on terra firma which turned an otherwise future-oriented man into a hostile critic of the church to the moon.

It is a form of escapism, like detective stories," he told the United Church general synod in 1967. "Which is more important — that we land on the moon, or that we provide health for the millions of diseased and malnourished children in the world, or that we teach the millions of illiterates to read, or that we find a formula for ending the war in Vietnam? It is highly probable that if we were to concentrate an equivalent amount of money, knowledge, research and dedication upon any one of these problems that we concentrate on the space project we would come up with the answer."

A "COUNTRY BOY" out of Grinnell, Iowa, he came to care for cities, especially New York, where he spent 25 years. He could make this eloquently gentle plea on behalf of all nostalgic city dwellers in the era of the bulldozer and the melting pot.

"There are inconspicuous things, and frail things, and perhaps ethically neutral things which constitute the city's soul. The defense of them is not easily advertised as a great moral crusade. The ability of the church to come to the defense of some quiet and unobtrusive excellences may be the best test of its ministry to the city."

"A civilization that cares for quality prizes the integrity of a neighborhood, the charm of the small vignette, a tree in the angle of an old building, the texture of ancient brick and brownstone, the flavor of distinctive communities within the larger community — the flavor contributed by ethnic and national groups maintaining some of their distinctive ways."

Nostalgic for the vanishing past, yet dynamically experimental. Is there a contradiction? He was instrumental in developing such modern ministries as urban training centers, united campus ministries, scholarships for black, Indian, and Spanish-speaking youth, placing of church representatives in shopping centers, national parks, ski areas, aid to narcotics addicts and homosexuals.

HE SAW these as expanding the mission, not as replacing the local church. With all his withering criticism of the latter, he believed "The congregation is still the best place from which the church can make its sorties into the world. I believe in the redeemability of the local church for its new tasks."

His theology (he would chuckle at the word) was that meaning in the life of men exists only in relation to God, and that this makes man something great and mysterious. Try this:

The Bible has God say, 'I am that I am.' God refuses to be reduced to role-playing, even though the role he is exalted one of creator and judge and redeemer. The implication is that there are depths of mystery in God's being that go beyond what He does.

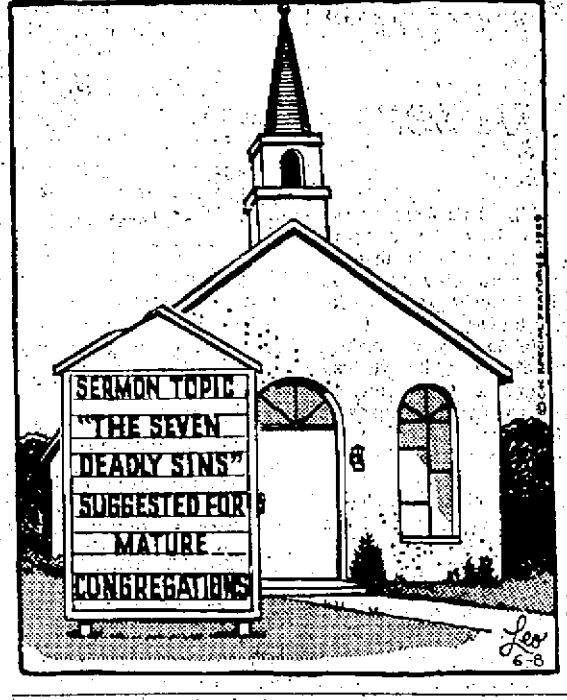

So with our own little selves. I am more than the sum of my functions. I am more than economic man, more than man the consumer, more than political man, more than professional man. I am also a being who feels and suffers and loves and hates and sins and knows remorse and experiences awe and wonder, who celebrates and worships. I am what I am — not merely what I do.

The mission of the church today is to hold up the 'man is more' image. Man is more than his functions. Man in infancy and childhood (before he is of any use); man in retirement (after he has ceased to be useful); man crippled in body or mind (with his usefulness sadly impaired); man without a job; man held in contempt because of his color, or class, or lack of education; man in all these forms is more...

Man is more than the cleverest machine. He is more than the largest nebula, a million times larger than the whole solar system.

He is more because he knows freedom, because he has a limitless life of the mind and spirit. He is more because he loves and

CHURCH HUMOR

'Peace of Mind' Phone Service

"Dial Peace of Mind," a 24-hour telephone service has been inaugurated by Bethany Chapel, 2201 Sixth St. It is designed, says the pastor, Rev. David E. Schoch, "so that anyone who may call with a problem or need can receive through this ministry strength and courage to face the future." The number is 433-6555.

Those seeking further counsel are invited to call the church "Prayer Chapel" at 433-9501 from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. daily.

He is more because this strange creature — tiny, impotent, utterly vulnerable, sometimes twisted and corrupt — is the one form of life to whom it has been revealed that existence has meaning, and meaning is early everything that is contained in the word 'God.'

PERHAPS ABOVE all, he was a foe of the bland and the unctuous and the don't-rock-the-boat people. "The Christian faith," Truman Douglass averred, "deals violently, one after another, with the cherished presuppositions by which modern man lives. It is impossible to present the Gospel without this offense."

DR. HUBBARD TO ADDRESS P.C.C. GRADS

Dr. David Allan Hubbard, president of Fuller Theological Seminary, will be the speaker for the 37th annual commencement exercises to be held at Pacific Christian College Friday, 8 p.m., it was announced by the college president, Dr. Kenneth A. Stewart.

On this Sunday, June 8, at 3 p.m., Dr. Lester Ford, minister of Golden West Christian Church of Los Angeles, and for 14 years president of Midwest Christian College in Oklahoma City, will address graduates and friends of Pacific Christian in the baccalaureate service at the college. The public is invited to attend both events.

Dr. Hubbard, the commencement speaker, is known throughout the world as guest speaker on "The Old-Fashioned Revival Hour." He is author of "With Bands of Love," and is chairman of the Pasadena Urban Coalition.

Pacific Christian was accredited last month by the Accrediting Commission of Senior Colleges and Universities of the Western Association of Schools and Colleges. Plans for the launching of a graduate school to be known as Pacific Christian Seminary have been formulated.

Would Aid POWs

The Lutheran Council in the USA has commended Administration officials for their special efforts in behalf of the prisoners of war held by North Vietnam, and the Viet Cong and has asked if there is any way in which church groups can be of help.

Bellflower Brethren to Dedicate Edifice

Dedication and open house for the recently completed $250,000 Christian Education building will be held Sunday at Bellflower Brethren Church, 9405 E. Flower St.

Speaker at 4 p.m. will be Dr. Glenn O'Neal, executive secretary of the District Fellowship of Brethren Churches, and professor of practical theology at Talbot Seminary.

The open house from 5-7 p.m. will be climaxed by a concert featuring the Brethren High School Madrigal Singers. Other musicians include trumpeter Gerald R. Frank, recently selected for the Star Spangled Banner at Dodger Stadium.

The 13,000 sq. ft. addition includes a fellowship hall now serving as temporary sanctuary, it was explained by the pastor, Rev. Edwin E. Cashman, who is vice president of the Bellflower Ministerial Assn.

Wells Honored

Dr. Bob Wells, pastor of Central Baptist Church of Anaheim, received the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity from Bob Jones University at convocation exercises. Also receiving an honorary degree from the Greenville, S.C., school was Gov. Lester Maddox of Georgia.

DR. O'NEAL
L.B. Witnesses to Be Delegates

One hundred and fourteen persons from the Long Beach West congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses will be delegates at the seven-day International Assembly scheduled for July 14-20 at Dodger Stadium in Los Angeles.

All members of the family serve as delegates at such conventions, which are designed as a regular part of their educational program. Titled "Peace on Earth," the Assembly is open to all with no admission charge and no collections taken, it was announced.

EXPECT 3,000 BAPTISTS FOR AUDITORIUM PARLEY

Preparations have been completed for the annual national meeting of the American Baptist Assn. June 17-20 in Municipal Auditorium, it was announced by the local hosts, First Baptist Church of Dominguez and Missionary Baptist of Bellflower.

Dr. Martin Canavan of the Dominguez church is president of the A.B.A., a strongly conservative grouping of some 3,000 churches headquartered in Texarkana. Some 3,000 "messengers" are expected.

"A civilization that cares for quality prizes the integrity of a neighborhood, the charm of the small vignette, a tree in the angle of an old building, the texture of ancient brick and brownstone, the flavor of distinctive communities within the larger community — the flavor contributed by ethnic and national groups maintaining some of their distinctive ways."

Nostalgic for the vanishing past, yet dynamical, experimental. Is there a contradiction? He was instrumental in developing such modern ministries as urban training centers, united campus ministries, scholarships for black, Indian and Spanish-speaking youth, placing of church representatives in shopping centers, national parks, ski areas, aid to narcotics addicts and homosexuals.

HE SAW these as expanding the mission, not as replacing the local church. With all his withering criticism of the latter, he believed "The congregation is still the best place from which the church can make its sorties into the world... I believe in the redeemability of the local church for its new tasks."

His theology (he would chuckle at the word) was that meaning in the life of men exists only in relation to God, and that this makes man something great and mysterious. Try this:

The Bible has God say, 'I am that I am.' God refuses to be reduced to role-playing, even though the role he is exalted one of creator and judge and redeemer. The implication is that there are depths of mystery in God's being that go beyond what He does.

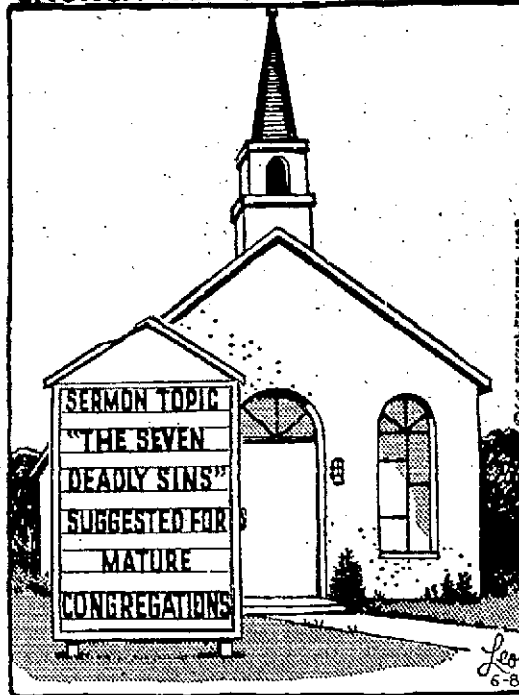

So with our own little selves. I am more than the sum of my functions. I am more than economic man, more than man the consumer, more than political man, more than professional man. I am also a being who feels and suffers and loves and hates and sins and knows remorse and experiences awe and wonder, who celebrates and worships. I am what I am — not merely what I do.

The mission of the church today is to hold up the 'man is more' image. Man is more than his functions. Man in infancy and childhood (before he is of any use); man in retirement (after he has ceased to be useful); man crippled in body or mind (with his usefulness sadly impaired); man without a job; man held in contempt because of his color, or class, or lack of education; man in all these forms is more...

Man is more than the cleverest machine. He is more than the largest nebula, a million times larger than the whole solar system.

He is more because he knows freedom, because he has a limitless life of the mind and spirit. He is more because he loves and

'Peace of Mind' Phone Service

"Dial Peace of Mind," a 24-hour telephone service has been inaugurated by Bethany Chapel, 2201 Sixth St. It is designed, says the pastor, Rev. David E. Schoch, "so that anyone who may call with a problem or need can receive through this ministry strength and courage to face the future." The number is 433-6555.

Those seeking further counsel are invited to call the church "Prayer Chapel" at 433-9501 from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. daily.

cares and adores.

He is more because this strange creature — tiny, impotent, utterly vulnerable, sometimes twisted and corrupt — is the one form of life to whom it has been revealed that existence has meaning, and meaning is early everything that is contained in the word "God."

PERHAPS ABOVE all, he was a foe of the bland and the unctuous and the don't-rock-the-boat people. "The Christian faith," Truman Douglass averred, "deals violently, one after another, with the cherished presuppositions by which modern man lives. It is impossible to present the Gospel without this offense."

Wrong to Tinker With Diversity

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

Four unusual little trees are growing today in a very special garden in Appleton, Wis. I learned about them from a man sitting next to me on an airplane trip I took recently.

He was in the lumber business, and after we got talking he told me about these four trees that are going to revolutionize the lumber business.

It seems that the trees were developed after six years of experimentation and they were not grown from seeds, and pollinated as ordinary trees are. They all came from tiny plugs taken out of one of the biggest and best aspen trees the scientists could find. Each of the four plugs, after special chemical treatment, has begun to grow, and eventually will turn into an exact duplicate of the tree it was cut from.

NO CROSSBREEDING, but an exact duplicate.

"Well," I asked the man who was describing this, "what does it mean?"

"Why," he said, "we won't have to worry any more about differences in trees. We can grow whole forests of the same tree, the biggest and most powerful tree we can find."

Then he went on, "This is only the beginning. Maybe some day they'll be doing the same thing with man. Can you imagine being able to create as many exact duplicates of people like Einstein or Beethoven as we wanted?"

"Well," I said to him, "would that make a better world? The great beauty of life is its diversity, and more than that, diversity is the great glory of man."

Each of us has an individuality that sets us apart from every other man. Each of us has spiritual qualities given us by our parents that set us aside as something special. The gentleness of a mother, for example, coupled with the lofty mental characteristics of a father make a great person.

Now those four little trees in Appleton, Wis., may revolutionize the lumber business, but I devoutly hope no scientist ever starts to tinker with the infinite variety of man created by God, for the variety in each of us expresses a different part of the greatness of God that is in us all.

Why should anyone think that an Einstein or a Beethoven represents the final glory of man? Far greater, perhaps, are the glories of human beings who are born and die without achieving fame, but who have created in their quiet ways more marvelous feats of the human spirit than the greatest artists or the greatest scientists.

Man is in a constant state of development. A great English writer and preacher by the name of Leslie Weatherhead once described the history of the individual man in a way I've never forgotten.

HE DESCRIBED the baby lying up under it's mother's heart. Now if that baby could have talked, he would have said, "How good it is here. How warm and secure." The idea of being born and leaving that warmth and security would terrify that baby. But after the miracle of

IN CONCERT

Dr. Paul Stroud, concert organist and teacher, will present a program Sunday, 7:30 p.m. in Grace Methodist Church, Third and Juniper. Associate professor of music at Cal State Long Beach, he is considered by many the West's foremost authority on church music, is secretary of the Committee on Theology and Worship, Pacific Synod, Lutheran Church in America. The congregation will be invited to sing several hymns with him after the concert pieces.

birth, the fear passes and the wonder and joy of childhood begins. Could be it's that way in the after earthly life too!

And so through life, each age has a new wonder and a new joy. Weatherhead described this as the history of an individual life, but it's also the history of mankind.

We have groped a way out of the darkness and face the unknown beauties yet to be discovered. The continuing adaptation of man to his changing world is the most exciting aspect of man's nature. Who knows what marvelous creatures the children yet to be born will be? But maybe those same marvels can show up in you. What about it?

AT 1ST BAPTIST

Dr. Russell M. Brougher, noted evangelist and minister-at-large whose biography is included in the latest "Who's Who in California," will be guest preacher Sunday, 8:30 and 11 a.m. in First Baptist Church, 10th and Pine, speaking on "Dangers of the Space Age." Former Army chaplain with the 40th Artillery, he pastored Baptist Temple in Brooklyn, N.Y. where for eight years he had the largest Sunday night audience of any church in New York.

Presbyterian Cutback Told

The Southern California Synod of the United Presbyterian Church has cut back its $2.45 million budget by 14 per cent because of a 14 per cent decline in contributions.

Dr. Lee V. Kilewer, chief executive of the 265-church synod, says, "It's anybody's guess as to which is the biggest reason."

He said some church members are dissatisfied with the church's involvement in social action programs, and that on the other hand he has noticed growing "anti-establishment" feelings against the church as an institution.

GOINGS ON

A youth committee, fittingly enough, is working on a mass audience for showing of the Billy Graham film "The Restless Ones," which deals dramatically with the teen-age crisis and the social problems of sex, drinking and defiance of law. With 25 churches of the Long Beach-Harbor Area Southern Baptist Assn. cooperating, the showing will be a week from today, Saturday, June 14, at 7:30 p.m. in the First Southern Baptist auditorium, 5640 Orange Ave. All area youth are invited. The same hard-hitting film will be shown Wednesday, 7 p.m. at First Christian, 125 E. Fifth St., and at 7:30 Wednesday at Calvary Assembly of God, 255th and Oak Streets, Long Beach.

Rev. Carl O. Olson, pastor of First Baptist of Simi Valley, will appear as a candidate for senior pastor Sunday at First Baptist of Lakewood, 5336 Arbor Road, preaching all services. In eight years he built the Simi church from a few families to 600 Sunday worshippers with a Sunday School of 575. Rev. Dwight Bennett, noted for his travel films, will preach Sunday 9:30 and 11 a.m. in First Methodist of San Pedro on "Do We Help the Enemy?" Rev. Paul Friedmann of the Narcotic Educational Foundation of America will speak Sunday, 8:45 and 10 a.m. in Immanuel Lutheran, 345 Carson Ave., and will show a 20-minute film on narcotic use at an adult forum 8:45 a.m. Calvary Assembly of God at 3640 Santa Fe Ave. has dedicated its new school annex, fellowship hall and parsonage.

"Music for Young Hearts" will be presented at Bixby Knolls Church of the Nazarene, 4911 Orange Ave., Friday, 7:30 p.m. by the 70-voice Senior High Choir from First Church of Bethany, Okla., on its third national tour, featuring folk ballads, spirituals, patriotic themes, with lighting and sound effects and teen dialogue. The Silver Lute Singers of Lakewood High, known for their medieval and Renaissance music, will sing Sunday, 8:15 p.m. at Wayfarers Chapel in Palos Verdes. And this is the final night for "Oklahoma!" by the Canterbury Players at St. Thomas Episcopal, 5306 Arbor Road; adults donation $1.50, students $1, under 12, 15 cents.

THE REV. FLOYD L. OSBORNE has just founded and organized a new church, which is being incorporated as the "Guiding Light Tabernacle" of Cerritos, California. Rev. Osborne is the President of the corporation, and the Rev. D. Wayne Whitlamore is Vice President. Rev. Osborne will be assisted in the new Pastorate by Rev. Whitlamore.

REV. OSBORNE'S WORK in the ministry goes back over twenty years. He was ordained at the age of twenty-two by a sister of Mrs. Osborne, the Rev. M. J. Branstetter, who has the largest independent full-gospel movement in Hawaii, with over twenty-five churches and missions scattered over most of the islands. At the young age of 23, Rev. Osborne pastored his first church at Kaneohe, Hawaii.

REV. OSBORNE HAS WORKED WITH MANY PERSONS well known in the ministry in the area of Southern California, among whom have been E. B. and Emma Taylor, the late Rev. Herschel Phillips, and most recently was associated with his brother, Rev. E. L. Osborne, as Associate Pastor at Bethel Tabernacle in North Long Beach.

THE NAME OF THE NEW CHURCH will have a familiar ring to many residents in the Long Beach area. Indeed it should, because Rev. Osborne enjoyed a close association with Rev. Phillips, who founded the original "Guiding Light Tabernacle" located on Signal Hill. Rev. Osborne was Assistant Pastor to Rev. Phillips until his untimely passing on Easter Sunday in 1967, while ministering from the pulpit during the morning service.

REV. PHILLIPS, like many full-gospel preachers, had a habit that when he became warm while preaching, he would remove his coat and toss it over a chair on the platform. On this Easter Sunday, however, when he removed his coat, he very carefully folded it, turned and handed it to his Assistant, Rev. Floyd Osborne. A few minutes later, Rev. Phillips was dead.

NEVER BEFORE had he ever handed his coat to Rev. Osborne. It was, in the words of Rev. Osborne, "like a signal that 'Here I pass along my ministry for you to carry on.' " So it seemed only natural that when Rev. Osborne founded this new work that it should be called "Guiding Light Tabernacle" in memory of his close friend.

THE SANCTUARY of the new church is located at 12061 Del Amo Blvd., and was previously occupied by a large denominational church. It seats approximately four hundred and is presently undergoing complete redecoration inside and landscaping outside. One of the first jobs to be done was to greatly enlarge the platform, under the capable direction of Rev. Wally Davenport, as the new church already has one of the outstanding choirs in the area, which though only recently formed, is becoming so well-known, they have already received many invitations to sing elsewhere.

BOTH REV. AND MRS. OSBORNE are noted for their southern style of gospel singing. An accomplished pianist and soloist, Mrs. Osborne formerly taught piano at the Frank Owens Studios of Music in Hawaii. They are the parents of one son and four daughters.

Torrance Man, 'True Church'
A FUNNY THING HAPPENED ON THE WAY TO HEAVEN. By Gary Freeman. Illustrated by Jim Crane. $3.95, Harper & Row.

The author, in a tongue-in-cheek preface, says there's not a word of truth in this story about Cletus Kinchelow, a Texas-trained evangelist of the True Church.

But there's a strong suspicion that this account of preacher Kinchelow is a self-portrait of the author, who is a minister in Torrance, and who has had his differences with the True Church.

As Mr. Freeman, or Kinchelow, points out, you can't explain what this story is about unless you know something about churches - and particularly the church which the author takes to task for its fundamentalist or conservative stance on the Bible.

Liberal - by his church's standards - Kinchelow's struggle with the True Church (or Church of Christ) in matters of doctrine and his doings at

'CREATION' 40 YEARS LATER

Forty years ago this month in the old Municipal Auditorium Rolla Alford directed Haydn's magnificent oratorio "Creation," using his newly formed Haydn-Handel Oratorio Society, which in 1930 became the Long Beach Civic Chorus.

This Sunday, the very same Rolla Alford, noted minister of music at First Methodist Church, Fifth and Pacific, will present the same work at the church at 4 p.m. The Sanctuary Choir of 50 voices will be augmented by 20 others who have sung with Alford in other groups.

CONFIDENT LIVING
Wrong to Tinker With Diversity

By NORMAN
VINCENT PEALE

Four unusual little trees are growing today in a very special garden in Appleton, Wis. I learned about them from a man sitting next to me on an airplane trip I took recently.

He was in the lumber business, and after we got talking he told me about these four trees that are going to revolutionize the lumber business.

It seems that the trees were developed after six years of experimentation and they were not grown from seeds and pollinated as ordinary trees are. They all came from tiny plugs taken out of one of the biggest and best aspen trees the scientists could find. Each of the four plugs, after special chemical treatment, has begun to grow, and eventually will turn into an exact duplicate of the tree it was cut from.

NO CROSSBREEDING, but an exact duplicate.

"Well," I asked the man who was describing this, "what does it mean?"

"Why," he said, "we won't have to worry any more about differences in trees. We can grow whole forests of the same tree, the biggest and most powerful tree we can find."

Then he went on, "This is only the beginning. Maybe some day they'll be doing the same thing with man. Can you imagine being able to create as many exact duplicates of people like Einstein or Beethoven as we wanted?"

"Well," I said to him, "would that make a better world? The great beauty of life is its diversity, and more than that, diversity is the great glory of man."

Each of us has an individuality that sets us apart from every other man. Each of us has spiritual qualities given us by our parents that set us aside as something special. The gentleness of a mother, for example, coupled with the lofty mental characteristics of a father make a great person.

Now those four little trees in Appleton, Wis., may revolutionize the lumber business, but I devoutly hope no scientist ever starts to tinker with the infinite variety of man created by God, for the variety in each of us expresses a different part of the greatness of God that is in us all.

Why should anyone think that an Einstein or a Beethoven represents the final glory of man? Far greater, perhaps, are the glories of human beings who are born and die without achieving fame, but who have created in their quiet ways more marvelous feats of the human spirit than the greatest artists or the greatest scientists.

Man is in a constant state of development. A great English writer and preacher by the name of Leslie Weatherhead once described the history of the individual man in a way I've never forgotten.

HE DESCRIBED the baby lying up under its mother's heart. Now if that baby could have talked, he would have said, "How good it is here. How warm and secure." The idea of being born and leaving that warmth and security would terrify that baby. But after the miracle of

Dr. Paul Stroud, concert organist and teacher, will present a program Sunday, 7:30 p.m. in Grace Methodist Church, Third and Junipero. Associate professor of music at Cal State Long Beach, he is considered by many the West's foremost authority on church music, is secretary of the Committee on Theology and Worship, Pacific Synod, Lutheran Church in America. The congregation will be invited to sing several hymns with him after the concert pieces.

birth, the fear passes and the wonder and joy of childhood begins. Could be it's that way in the after earthly life too!

And so through life, each age has a new wonder and a new joy. Weatherhead described this as the history of an individual life, but it's also the history of mankind.

We have groped a way out of the darkness and face the unknown beauties yet to be discovered. The continuing adaptation of man to his changing world is the most exciting aspect of man's nature. Who knows what marvelous creatures the children yet to be born will be? But maybe those same marvels can show up in you. What about it?

AT 1ST BAPTIST

Dr. Russell M. Brougher, noted evangelist and minister-at-large whose biography is included in the latest "Who's Who in California," will be guest preacher Sunday, 8:30 and 11 a.m. in First Baptist Church, 10th and Pine, speaking on "Dangers of the Space Age." Former Army chaplain with the 40th Artillery, he pastored Baptist Temple in Brooklyn, N.Y., where for eight years he had the largest Sunday night audience of any church in New York.

Presbyterian Cutback Told

The Southern California Synod of the United Presbyterian Church has cut back its $2.45 million budget by 14 per cent because of a 14 per cent decline in contributions.

Dr. Lee V. Kiewer, chief executive of the 265-church synod, says, "It's anybody's guess as to which is the biggest reason."

He said some church members are dissatisfied with the church's involvement in social action programs, and that on the other hand he has noticed growing "anti-establishment" feelings among the church as an institution.

GOINGS ON

A youth committee, fittingly enough, is working on a mass audience for showing of the Billy Graham film "The Restless Ones," which deals dramatically with the teen-age crisis and the social problems of sex, drinking and defiance of law. With 25 churches of the Long Beach-Harbor Area Southern Baptist Assn. cooperating, the showing will be a week from today, Saturday, June 14, at 7:30 p.m. in the First Southern Baptist auditorium, 5640 Orange Ave. All area youth are invited. The same hard-hitting film will be shown Wednesday, 7 p.m. at First Christian, 125 E. Fifth St., and at 7:30 Wednesday at Calvary Assembly of God, 255th and Oak Streets, Long Beach.

Rev. Carl O. Olson, pastor of First Baptist of Simi Valley, will appear as a candidate for senior pastor Sunday at First Baptist of Lakewood, 5336 Arbor Road, preaching all services. In eight years he built the Simi church from a few families to 600 Sunday worshippers with a Sunday School of 575. Rev. Dwight Bennett, noted for his travel films, will preach Sunday 9:30 and 11 a.m. in First Methodist of San Pedro on "Do We Help the Enemy?" Rev. Paul Friedmann of the Narcotic Educational Foundation of America will speak Sunday, 8:45 and 10 a.m. in Immanuel Lutheran, 345 Carson Ave., and will show a 20-minute film on narcotic use at an adult forum 8:45 a.m. Calvary Assembly of God at 3640 Santa Fe Ave. has dedicated its new school annex, fellowship hall and parsonage.

"Music for Young Hearts" will be presented at Bixby Knolls Church of the Nazarene, 4911 Orange Ave., Friday, 7:30 p.m. by the 70-voice Senior High Choir from First Church of Bethany, Okla., on its third national tour, featuring folk ballads, spirituals, patriotic themes, with lighting and sound effects and teen dialogue. The Silver Lute Singers of Lakewood High, known for their medieval and Renaissance music, will sing Sunday, 8:15 p.m. at Wayfarers Chapel in Palos Verdes. And this is the final night for "Oklahoma!" by the Canterbury Players at St. Thomas Episcopal, 5306 Arbor Road, adults donation $1.50, students $1, under 12, 15 cents.

THE REV. FLOYD L. OSBORNE has just founded and organized a new church, which is being incorporated as the "Guiding Light Tabernacle" of Carriton, California. Rev. Osborne is the President of the corporation, and the Rev. D. Wayne Whittemore is Vice President. Rev. Osborne will be assisted in the new Pastorate by Rev. Whittemore.

REV. OSBORNE'S WORK in the ministry goes back over twenty years. He was ordained at the age of twenty-two by a sister of Mrs. Osborne, the Rev. M. J. Brostek, who has the largest independent full-gospel movement in Hawaii, with over twenty-five churches and missions scattered over most of the islands. At the young age of 23, Rev. Osborne pastored his first church at Kaneohe, Hawaii.

REV. OSBORNE HAS WORKED WITH MANY PERSONS well known in the ministry in the area of Southern California, among whom have been E. B. and Emma Taylor, the late Rev. Herschel Phillips, and most recently was associated with his brother, Rev. E. L. Osborne, as Associate Pastor at Bethel Tabernacle in North Long Beach.

THE NAME OF THE NEW CHURCH will have a familiar ring to many residents in the Long Beach area. Indeed it should, because Rev. Osborne enjoyed a close association with Rev. Phillips, who founded the original "Guiding Light Tabernacle" located on Signal Hill. Rev. Osborne was Assistant Pastor to Rev. Phillips until his untimely passing on Easter Sunday in 1967, while ministering from the pulpit during the morning service.

REV. PHILLIPS, like many full-gospel preachers, had a habit that when he became warm while preaching, he would remove his coat and toss it over a chair on the platform. On this Easter Sunday, however, when he removed his coat, he very carefully folded it, turned and handed it to his Assistant, Rev. Floyd Osborne. A few minutes later, Rev. Phillips was dead.

NEVER BEFORE had he ever handed his coat to Rev. Osborne. It was, in the words of Rev. Osborne, "like a signal that 'Here I pass along my ministry for you to carry on.' " So it seemed only natural that when Rev. Osborne founded this new work that it should be called "Guiding Light Tabernacle" in memory of his close friend.

THE SANCTUARY of the new church is located at 12061 Del Amo Blvd., and was previously occupied by a large denominational church. It seats approximately four hundred and is presently undergoing complete redecoration inside and landscaping outside. One of the first jobs to be done was to greatly enlarge the platform, under the capable direction of Rev. Wally Davenport, as the new church already has one of the outstanding choirs in the area, which though only recently formed, is becoming a well-known, they have already received many invitations to sing elsewhere.

BOTH REV. AND MRS. OSBORNE are noted for their southern style of gospel singing. An accomplished pianist and soloist, Mrs. Osborne formerly taught piano at the Frank Owens Studios of Music in Hawaii. They are the parents of one son and four daughters.

Award of Emmys Slated on Sunday

By GEORGE ERES
TV-Radio Editor

The Television Academy makes its awards Sunday night on Ch. 2 and this year, as in the past, there are a number of beefs about the way things are being run.

But, as Academy President Seymour Berns notes: "Members are always yelling that they don't like the way things are run and threatening to hand their Emmys back. So far none of the statuettes have been turned into the office."

THIS YEAR the beefs are about the fact that while nominations for "best actor in a one-time supporting role" and for best director of a comedy or variety series, were made the anonymous "blue ribbon" panel of judges which makes the awards has decided nobody deserves the awards this time.

Under Academy rules, awards need not be made if in the opinion of the judges they do not meet the requirements of excellence the "blue ribbon" panel uses for judgments.

Nominees in the category for supporting actor were Ned Glass, in a "Julia" segment; Hal Holbrook in a film for TV, "The Whole World Is Watching," and Billy Schulman, the retarded youngster in the "Hall of Fame" show, "Teacher, Teacher."

Nominated for the director award were Greg Garrison, of the "Dean Martin Show," Gordon Wiles, "Laugh-In" and Bill Hobin, for a Bill Cosby special.

THE "DEAN Martin Show" cancelled reservations for the awards presentation show, presumably because of the decision to withhold an award from nominees. I seem to recall that Garrison was pretty irritated last year with the Emmy Show, which he produced for the Academy. He said the Academy officials loused up the presentation event.

The board of the American Federation of TV & Radio Artists chapter in Los Angeles, also protested, and asked the Academy to revise its rules so that this business of withholding Emmys after nominations have been announced won't happen again. "The publicist," said AFTRA, "is harmful to the performers involved."

But, whatever the complaints, the Emmys will go on. As Berns says, "Nobody's sent back an Emmy yet."

ABC (CH. 7) Summer Focus Friday night offered a gripping presentation of the problem of abortion.

Since the question has been kicked around quite a bit and several states have eased up somewhat on handling of the problem it is no great step forward in terms of courage. Still, it was a useful program and dramatic in its presentation of women who had gone through legal and illegal abortions and those who gave birth to malformed children because they were unable to obtain abortions.

PERKINS

CBS Selects 'Prisoner'

NEW YORK (AP)—CBS has chosen to fill the Thursday night hour formerly occupied by "The Jonathan Winters Show" with reruns of the British-made series, "The Prisoner," first seen here as a summer replacement two seasons back.

It is a beautifully filmed, thoughtful series about a mysterious village. An important British official, privy to many secrets, has chosen to resign his post "as a matter of conscience." Thereupon he is kidnapped and winds up in a picture-postcard village where life is pleasant, completely regimented and from which there is apparently no escape.

The series obviously is a message — a sort of cosmic, allegory, but as a TV series it suffers from two massive flaws.

First, the message is difficult to fathom — its producer recently issued a guide for viewers. A sample explanation: The village "represents the real and unconscious world of civilization today."

TOP VIEWING TODAY

Ridder, chairman of the Board of Trustees, California State Colleges, and co-publisher of the Long Beach Independent, Press-Telegram, will be interviewed by Tom Brokaw, Jess Marlow and Piers Anterton.

9:30 P.M. — JOHNNY CASH, Ch. 7. Country, folk and pop music are featured in new summer series for ABC featuring recording star Cash, regulars June Carter and the Tennessee Three. Bob Dylan is guest on opener.

Leave It To Larry

By LARRY MEDER

truck driver was about to begin eating his carefully prepared T-Bone steak and potatoes, when a tough looking bunch of motorcycle riders barged into the restaurant.

One of the crowd (the leader, apparently), picked up a bottle of ketchup and doused it all over the driver's head; a second burly member of the group reached down and grabbed the man's steak, took a huge bite of it and passed it around to his pals!

Looking somewhat disconcerted at all this, the would-be diner got up and strode out of the cafe. One of the cyclists, expressing complete derision, bellowed, "That truck driver ain't much of a fighter, is he?"

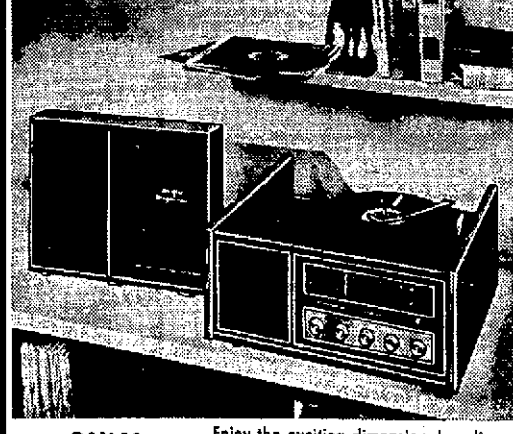

Just then a customer walked in and said, "He ain't much of a driver neither — 'cuz with a silly grin on his face he just ran his Diesel truck and trailer over eleven motorcycles!!!"
Folks — why don't you "run over" to Harbor Chevrolet at 3770 Cherry Avenue for that May-June deal on a new Chevy? GA 6-3341. Dial "M" for MEDER.

BABY BOY DOESN'T KNOW DADDY IS GONE
Larry Reilly III at Rites for Destroyer

Memorial Rites Held for 74 Evans Crewmen

By BUCK LANIER
Military Editor

In Friday's military Memorial services for the 74 men who went down with the Long Beach destroyer USS Frank Evans, it wasn't the prayers or speeches that moistened many eyes.

And it wasn't a rendition of "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God" by the Cruiser-Destroyer Group Band led by Chief Musician Carl Evans.

Each of the 34 grief-stricken families present was given a folded flag by a Naval escort officer, but that wasn't what deeply touched hearts.

The most moving incident during the memorial services was the spontaneous cry of a child for his "daddy," which echoed across Gull Park at Long Beach Naval Station.

Cmdr. Eugene Flatley, chaplain of the Long Beach Cruiser-Destroyer Group, delivered one of several prayers during the ceremony.

He said the disaster "makes us mindful of our frailties and mortality and we must learn to be ready when it comes time for us to follow these brave men."

Others taking part were Chaplain W. G. Willson of the USS Long Beach, and Rabbi Syreney S. Guthman of Temple Mt. Sinai, the Naval Station's auxiliary chaplain.

An Australian delegation, headed by Naval Attaché Commodore Bruce Loxton from Washington, Consul General H. Neil Truscott, and six active duty Aussie Navy men currently training in San Diego joined the service.

The interdenominational memorial was closed by three rifle volleys fired by the Marines — then taps echoed westward over the Pacific where the destroyer men sleep in the South China Sea.

Making A Mountain Out Of ... Newspaper

Boy Scouts from Troop 233 use newspapers to make a mountain for display in today's Scout-O-Rama at Long Beach Veterans Stadium. Working on display are, from left, Brad Williamson, Tony Risetter, Keith Hiatt, Craig Vandenburg, Corky White, Glen Pacht and Ted Spencer. "Paper mountain" will be used for climbing and back-packing demonstration. In all, more than 100 booths will be featured at Scout-O-Rama. A parade, with western movie star Rod Cameron, will be at 1 p.m., starting from Del Amo Boulevard and Clark Street. Admission is $1, but youngsters under 18 will be admitted free with ticket holder.

LAKEWOOD BANK BANDIT GETS $2,000

A "two-car" bandit — taking advantage of an out-of-order alarm system — robbed a Lakewood branch bank Friday and fled with $2,000. Sheriff's deputies said the bandit — a "one gun gunman" — entered the United California Bank, 4322 Silva St., about 3:40 p.m. and leveled a small caliber revolver at the teller. Mary Kedsie, 25, told officers the gunman ordered her to place the cash in a leather satchel, then fled to the parking lot and sped away in a small foreign auto. Deputies said the well-dressed bandit later abandoned the small car and escaped in a sedan.

LIFETIME LEARNERS TOLD:

'Don't Prejudge Our Youth'

By CHARLES SUTTON
Staff Writer

A Southern California college administrator Friday advised older people to avoid knee-jerk judgments of America's rebellious students.

"Except in obvious circumstances of outright physical violence," Dr. Curtis R. Hungerford of USC said, "we probably would be wise not to act instinctively — that is, protectively and defensively."

Addressing more than 100 older people at commencement exercises for Long Beach's Institute for Lifetime Learning, he said older generations "should be sensitive to the needs and frustrations lying deep below such surface rallying issues as the Vietnam war, racial injustice, religious hypocrisy and material greed.

"These are only the jumping off places. Let us listen for the deeper dimensions of unrest," he counseled.

He said today's younger generation is "starved for affection, recognition, respect, compassion and honesty from its elders."

The Institute, now four years old, awarded diplomas of achievement to 78 students — all over 65 — who have completed five or more courses at the

Fifty of them received their certificates from Cecelia O'Neil, president of the National Retired Teachers Assn.

The Institute, operated by the teachers' association and the American Assn. of Retired Persons, offers a wide-ranging program, including courses in Spanish, mental health, literature, photography, journalism, public speaking and metaphysics.

Sailor in Black Nylons Shot Dead Fleeing $1 Theft at Thrift Shop

at 638 Alamos Ave., when a patrol car answered the burglary-in-progress dispatch.

Officer Drake said he fired three shots at the fleeing figure, and one slug from his service revolver apparently severed the suspect's spine.

Saunders, who was assigned to the Long Beach Naval Station, died at 3:41 a.m. in St. Mary's Hospital.

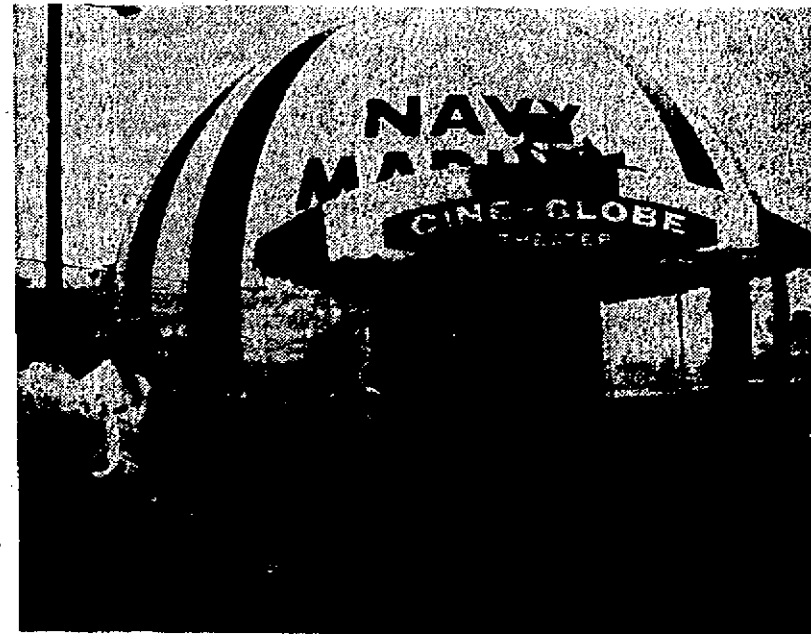

St. Mary's Fund Drive Report Slated for Thursday Lunch

Division chairmen in the $3 million St. Mary's Hospital Development program will report fund-raising progress during a Thursday luncheon at the Victor Hugo Restaurant, 730 E. Broadway.

Joseph A. Ball, general campaign chairman, will process fund reports — which will augment the nearly $2 million already pledged. "The most important cards in the St. Mary's program are those in the hands of our group chairman and their workers," Ball said.

He added the entire campaign organization must now "begin moving in the direction of complete fulfillment of our civic responsibilities."

BALLOON LOOKS—AND WORKS—LIKE A THEATER

Eager viewers awaiting tour of Navy-Marine Cine-Globe at Pierpoint Landing where inflatable "instant theater" opens today to show "Navy-Marine Corps Team in Action." Inflatable balloon is assembled by use of blowers which fill 36-foot-high, 56-foot-diameter balloon to allow seating of up to 220 persons. Film showings begin at Pierpoint at noon today.

Cmdr. Eugene Flatley, chaplain of the Long Beach Cruiser-Destroyer Group, delivered one of several prayers during the ceremony.

He said the disaster "makes us mindful of our frailties and mortality and we must learn to be ready when it comes time for us to follow these brave men."

Others taking part were Chaplain W. G. Willson of the USS Long Beach, and Rabbi Syrney S. Guthman of Temple Mt. Sinai, the Naval Station's auxiliary chaplain.

An Australian delegation, headed by Naval Attache Commodore Bruce Loxton from Washington, Consul General H. Neil Truscott, and six active duty Aussie Navy men currently training in San Diego joined the service.

The interdenominational memorial was closed by three rifle volleys fired by base's Marines — then taps echoed westward over the Pacific where the destroyer men sleep in the South China Sea.

Making A Mountain Out Of ... Newspaper

Boy Scouts from Troop 233 use newspapers to make a mountain for display in today's Scout-O-Rama at Long Beach Veterans Stadium. Working on display are, from left, Brad Williamson, Tony Rissetter, Keith Hiatt, Craig Vandenburg, Corky White, Glen Pacht and Ted Spencer. "Paper mountain" will be used for climbing and back-packing demonstration. In all, more than 100 booths will be featured at Scout-O-Rama. A parade, with western movie star Rod Cameron, will be at 1 p.m., starting from Del Amo Boulevard and Clark Street. Admission is $1, but youngsters under 18 will be admitted free with ticket holder.

LAKWOOD BANK BANDIT GETS $2,000

A "two-car" bandit — taking advantage of an out-of-order alarm system — robbed a Lakewood branch bank Friday and fled with $2,000. Sheriff's deputies said the bandit — a "one gun gunman" — entered the United California Bank, 4322 Silva St., about 3:40 p.m. and leveled a small caliber revolver at the teller.

Mary Kedsle, 25, told officers the gunman ordered her to place the cash in a leather satchel, then fled to the parking lot and sped away in a small foreign auto.

Deputies said the well-dressed bandit later abandoned the small car and escaped in a sedan.

Free Clinic Meeting Set Monday Evening

The Long Beach Free Clinic will hold a regular meeting at 7:30 p.m. Monday at 1319 Gaviota Ave.

It may be the last meeting of the fledgling organization at that location — the clinic is moving from the Gaviota Avenue address to a new location at 2066 Atlantic Ave.

I, P.T. Ad Sells VW for the Price Asked

"I got just the price I wanted for my '67 VW. I sold the car the second day of a Thrifty run. The Independent, Press-Telegram classifieds are the only way to sell," says John Chapman of 1020 Temple St., Long Beach. "Whatever you have for sale, an I, P.T. reader wants it. In Long Beach call—HE 2-3959; Lakewood ME 2-0764; Bellflower, TO 6-1721; Orange County, JE 7-7441."

The agency — designed to meet needs not met by other community medical facilities — is mapping major projects for the new location.

The landlord at the Gaviota Avenue address sent an eviction notice to the clinic.

Ron Lofstrom, clinic administrator, said volunteer labor is needed to move the Free Clinic to its new location.

The clinic is not planning to make the Atlantic Avenue location permanent, Lofstrom said, but will probably move closer to the city's central area, where the need is greater.

Fishing Trip Off

A radio, fishing tackle and camera equipment valued at $357 were stolen Friday from an auto belonging to John E. Duerksen while it was parked in the driveway of his home, 2692 Baltic Ave.

LIFETIME LEARNERS TOLD:

By CHARLES SUTTON
Staff Writer

A Southern California college administrator Friday advised older people to avoid knee-jerk judgments of America's rebellious students.

"Except in obvious circumstances of outright physical violence," Dr. Curtiss R. Hungerford of USC said, "we probably would be wise not to act instinctively — that is, protectively and defensively."

Addressing more than 100 older people at commencement exercises for Long Beach's Institute for Lifetime Learning, he said older generations "should be sensitive to the needs and frustrations lying deep below such surface rallying issues as the Vietnam war, racial injustice, religious hypocrisy and material greed.

"These are only the jumping off places. Let us listen for the deeper dimensions of unrest," he counseled.

He said today's younger generation is "starved for affection, recognition, respect, compassion and honesty from its elders."

The Institute, now four years old, awarded diplomas of achievement to 78 students — all over 65 — who have completed five or more courses at the school. Ethel Young was honor student.

Fifty of them received their certificates from Cecilia O'Neil, president of the National Retired Teachers Assn.

The Institute, operated by the teachers' association and the American Assn. of Retired Persons, offers a wide-ranging program, including courses in Spanish, mental health, literature, photography, journalism, public speaking and metaphysics.

Sailor in Black Nylons Shot Dead Fleeing $1 Theft at Thrift Shop

A Long Beach-based sailor — bizarrely garbed in a pair of black nylon hose — died Friday after being shot by police while trying to flee a burglarized thrift shop.

Officers said Lorenzo R. Saunders, 21, was crouched inside the shop at 638 Alamitos Ave., when a patrol car answered the burglary-in-progress dispatch.

When spotted, Officer David Drake said, the suspect was nude except for the stockings.

The officers said Saunders attempted to escape out the back of the shop, ignoring shouts of "Police officers, halt" and "Police, Hold It."

Officer Drake said he fired three shots at the fleeing figure, and one slug from his service revolver apparently severed the suspect's spine.

Saunders, who was assigned to the Long Beach Naval Station, died at 3:41 a.m. in St. Mary's Hospital.

St. Mary's Fund Drive Report Slated for Thursday Lunch

Division chairmen in the $3 million St. Mary's Hospital Development program will report fund-raising progress during a Thursday luncheon at the Victor Hugo Restaurant, 730 E. Broadway.

Joseph A. Ball, general campaign chairman, will process fund reports — which will augment the nearly $2 million already pledged.

"The most important cards in the St. Mary's program are those in the hands of our group chairman and their workers," Ball said.

He added the entire campaign organization must now "begin moving in the direction of complete fulfillment of our civic responsibilities."

BALLOON LOOKS--AND WORKS--LIKE A THEATER

Eager viewers awaiting tour of Navy-Marine Cine-Globe at Pierpoint Landing where inflatable "instant theater" opens today to show "Navy-Marine Corps Team in Action." Inflatable balloon is assembled by use of blowers which fill 36-foot-high, 56-foot-diameter balloon to allow seating of up to 220 persons. Film showings begin at Pierpoint at noon today.

The United States Supreme Court once ruled that "GOOD WILL IS THE DESIRE OF THE CUSTOMER TO RETURN TO WHERE HE HAS BEEN WELL TREATED." If you think about that for a moment, it makes an awful lot of sense. It closely parallels the thought we have at Sunset Ford — "Doing business in the good old-fashioned way" — no gimmick advertising to insult the customer's intelligence, no high pressure sales tactics, and no questionable service practices. We are dedicated to the principle of treating customers fairly and giving them outstanding service. If we do this well and consistently, Sunset Ford will be a model of success.

The United States Supreme Court once ruled that "GOOD WILL IS THE DESIRE OF THE CUSTOMER TO RETURN TO WHERE HE HAS BEEN WELL TREATED." If you think about that for a moment, it makes an awful lot of sense. It closely parallels the thought we have at Sunset Ford -- "Doing business in the good old-fashioned way" No gimmick advertising to insult the customer's intelligence, no high pressure sales tactics, and no questionable service practice. We are dedicated to the principle of treating customers fairly and giving them outstanding service. If we do this well and consistently, Sunset Ford will be a model of success.
